Fire Dept. passes tests

Fire insurance rates could be cut, private rating agency stresses

Some Romulus homeowners soon may be the fortunate recipients of a fire insurance rate decrease as a result of a thorough city-wide evaluation completed last week of the city's fire-fighting capabilities.

The inspection, conducted by the Insurance Services Office (ISO) of Michigan, an independent rating agency used by insurance companies throughout the state, was the first complete evaluation conducted in Romulus since 1969.

The study was requested by Mayor William M. Oakley shortly after he took office in 1978, after he learned of the relatively low rating assigned to the city.

Romulus "residential and commercial building owners may have been charged higher insurance rates, based on outdated information, a situation I am confident will change as a result of the rating re-evaluation recently completed," the mayor said.

The mayor cited improved water facilities, a fourth city fire station, excellent response times recorded by Romulus volunteer fire fighters, and improved, modern equipment as justification for his prediction.

Romulus "residential and commercial building owners may have been charged higher insurance rates, based on outdated information, a situation I am confident will change as a result of the rating re-evaluation recently completed," the mayor said.

The mayor cited improved water facilities, a fourth city fire station, excellent response times recorded by Romulus volunteer fire fighters, and improved, modern equipment as justification for his prediction.

Romulus currently has an ISO rating of either 8 or 9, depending on location, on a scale of 1 to 10 (one being the highest).

By way of comparison, Belleville is rated 7, Huron Township — 8, Inkster — 6, Sumpter Township — 8, Taylor — 5, Van Buren Township — 8, Wayne — 5 and Westland — 5.

However, according to Harry Westhaus, supervisor of public protection at ISO, a better rating may not necessarily lower the rates insurance companies charge Romulus residential clients. Homeowner's insurance costs the same for classes 1-8. The only change, would be in those areas changed from 9 to 8, and those cases would probably already be recorded, since that indicates the presence of a water source, which is reported soon after installation.

"The primary benefactors, 'according to Westhaus,' will be commercial property owners and those people who have only fire insurance extended coverage on their residential properties."

In those instances, the rates change from classes 1-4, 5-6, 7-8, 9 and 10.

The week-long testing, conducted by ISO field rating representative Arthur Baldyga, involved five city departments and required extensive documentation, including survey forms, water distribution maps, water consumption tables for the past 12 months, response times recorded by the fire department all on fires within the past year, a complete inventory of all fire fighting equipment, water flow and pressure tests and more. (A slight discoloration of water noticed by some residents last week, was the result of the fire hydrant testing, and cleared quickly.)

The project, coordinated through the mayor's office, included the fire department, DPW, building department, water department and public information office.

In response to a question about working in Romulus, Baldyga responded, "I have had nothing but complete cooperation from all the mayor's department heads. Everything I needed was provided for me, efficiently and courteously."

Further evaluation and study of the accumulated data must now be completed at ISO headquarters, with a final grading due back within the next four months.

At that time, Romulus residents will be notified, by the public information office of any change. It is the homeowner's responsibility to contact their insurance company to find out if they qualify for a rebate or lowered rate.

"Everything looks good, real good," Baldyga said, after completing the survey and reporting back to the mayor.

"You won't stay the same, I'll guarantee that," he added, which should indeed be good news to many Romulus residents.

Romulus, Huron share big grant

Wayne County Commissioner Edgar L. Harris has announced a grant of almost $300,000 for three downriver communities including Romulus and Huron Township under the County's Community Development Block Grant Program that solicits and redistributes federal funds for local public works projects.

Harris said that the funds in general will be used for housing rehabilitation, sidewalk and sewer improvements, fire fighting equipment, and land acquisition for senior citizen facilities.

The communities and dollar amounts involved, said Harris, are: Flat Rock, $80,000; Romulus, $120,000; Huron Township for four projects, $80,000.

Harris said most of the money for Flat Rock will apply to revitalization of the Central Business District and for future development of senior citizen housing.

Romulus will benefit mostly from a new fire station and 200 senior citizen apartments, he said.

Also, said Harris, Huron Township will get new sidewalks, trees and shrubs along sections of Main Street, and a new fire truck.

"A lot of thought and effort has gone into this program in each of these communities, and we are grateful for the cooperation of local officials and the federal department of Housing and Urban Development," Harris continued.

Under the annual block grant program, the county organizes willing communities with less than 50,000 population and asks HUD for funds for the entire group, with detailed plans for distribution and expenditure of the money. Communities with more than 50,000 population apply and receive funds directly from HUD.

This year 32 communities are participating. Since its establishment five years ago, the program has attracted more than $22.5 million in income for Wayne County. It started with only $637,000 for just 17 communities.

The Block Grant Program is administered by the County Office of Program Development and Coordination, although all projects are determined at local levels after public hearings to evaluate priorities proposed in the application to HUD which has final authority.

Approved projects throughout the county include land acquisition for community use, water and sewer development, housing expansion, recreation programs and elimination of blighted buildings.

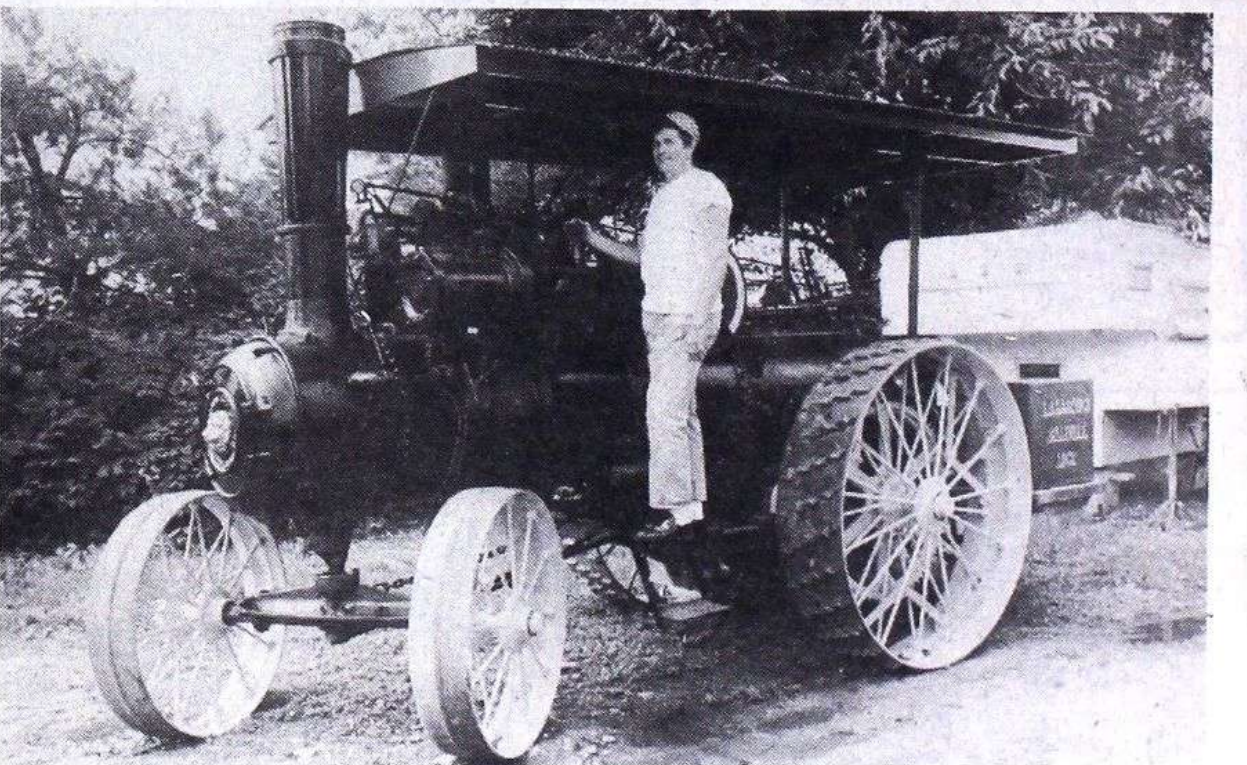

Basic policy of the Block Grant Program is determined by a 18-member advisory council which includes four county commissioners along with 14 other elected officials from the communities receiving funds.

Water pressure is okay

Romulus volunteer fireman Gary Vaughn measures the water pressure fired from a "deluge gun" mounted atop a Romulus "mini-attack pumper" during recent tests to evaluate the city's fire fighting ability. Using the fire department's oldest pumper to generate the required pressure, the department met the required standards and more. The site of the tests was the Moore Brothers sand and gravel pit in Romulus. Some 15 firemen volunteered their time to conduct the tests. Also pictured is Art Baldyga (standing) who conducted the tests for the Insurance Services Office of Michigan. (Photo by Jay Young.)

Old engine back in action

The ancient farm implement shown in photo is a 1916 Waterloo steam traction engine which now belongs to Larry Hartwick of Sumpter Township. The engine will see action Saturday when it and other old farm implements owned by area residents will thrash oats on the Ronald Lange farm, 23800 Elwell Rd., Sumpter Township, in a scene which was repeated many times over in yesteryear across the United States. Refreshments will be served at the thrashing which begins at noon.

Downtown gets facelift

Nearly-completed huge mural on east side of Bilmar's supermarket in Romulus, according to Bob Sterner, artist designer, is foot in the door to city's plans to remodel downtown section. Funded by a federal grant, the mural depicts a turn-of-the-century theme and contains sketches of many local historic buildings. Begun nearly two years ago, the gigantic mural will be completed this week, Sterner said. (Photo by Tom Greenwood, ANP staff photographer.)

Huron schools seek 3.5-mill increase

An increase of 3.5 mills for one year will be asked Sept. 10 by Huron Schools.

The extra mills, if approved by the voters, will recall 16 teachers, provide funds for building maintenance, supplies and materials, and restore a full athletic program. At the present time, only varsity sports have been scheduled for this school year.

Supt. Curtis D. Bartz also indicated that the district would return to a six-hour day of instruction rather than a five-hour day.

In other matters, the cooperative nursery was granted permission to use the Huron Elementary school again this year.

A workshop on the high school handbook was held July 24. The handbook is presently being revised by the high school administrators.

A synchronized swimming program will be held Aug. 8

(today) and Aug. 9 (tomorrow) in the school pool.

The next regular Huron Board of Education meeting will be Monday, Aug. 20 at 8 p.m.

New attendance policy adopted

High schools get tough on selective truancy

By MAUREEN CAMPS
ANP Staff Writer

The increasingly popular high school pastime of skipping classes, "selective truancy" during the school day, will be a lot harder to pull off in Wayne-Westland high schools in September.

The Wayne-Westland Community Schools Board of Education last week adopted a tough attendance policy that will result in failure in a class where a student has seven unexcused absences in a semester. The policy also deals with tardiness and has a step-by-step procedure that includes a meeting with parents, if a student gets to a point where he is in danger of violating the 7 unexcused absences rule.

The board policy was written and submitted to the board by George Bell, Wayne Memorial High School principal, John Harrison, John Glenn High School principal, and their staffs of assistant principals. Bell said the "no nonsense approach" to attendance will greatly affect the "7 to 8 percent of kids who are selectively truant from class."

In the past, there was no district-wide policy. Each school, and in effect each teacher, handled absences with different standards and emphasis. There was a need to create a consistency in dealing with truancy, Bell said.

He noted that the problem isn't necessarily one of a student skipping a whole day, but rather "selectively" skipping particular classes.

And even though the students should not be leaving the building during the day, there are several hundred students leaving the high schools for legitimate reasons during the day (co-op, classes held elsewhere) so that it's not possible to identify the truants on sight.

The policy also deals with excessive tardiness and concludes with an appeal process allowed the student who feels he has been unjustly dropped from a class.

The administration is hopeful that parents will be supportive of the new regulations. Letters to be sent home to parents are being prepared now to explain the new attendance policy.

'Potential' home buyers should get into market quick

"The best advice we can continue to offer potential homeowners is to get into the market as soon as possible," says John Cole, president of the Western Wayne-Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCBR). "Home prices remain on a steady pattern of escalation."

The national median price of an existing home, in which half of the buyers paid more and half less, was just over $20,000 in 1968. By the end of last year, this figure had more than doubled to over $48,000, he explained.

"The annual increase has been very close to 10 percent. Using this same base, the median price for an existing home will be $95,000 by 1985," he said.

Cole said even if annual price rises averaged only 8 percent during this interval, the median price would be more than $83,000 by 1985.

"However, there is really no reason to hope that values will increase at this lower rate," he added. "They are much more likely to climb at a higher rate which could push median prices beyond $100,000 as early as 1983 or 1984."

The WWOCBR president pointed out that both median and average prices have remained generally lower in this region of the country than other areas, but are beginning to close the gap.

"At the end of last year the national average price of an existing home, the number of units sold divided into total dollar volume, was $55,500," he said. "In the WWOCBR market area covering parts of Wayne, Oakland and Livingston counties and including some areas of Detroit, the average price last December was nearly $5,000 lower at $48,762. However, in the first six months of 1979, this figure rose to $53,722, some 23 percent more than a year earlier."

Cole said that, while current home mortgage interest rates are at record highs, buyers who delay longer than necessary could end up paying more, even if interest declines.

As an example, he cited the average priced existing home sold by WWOCBR members in June at $52,704. With a 20 percent down payment of $10,540 and an 11 1/2 percent conventional mortgage, the monthly payment for principal and interest would be $417.55.

"At the present rate of price growth, the same home will sell for more than $58,000 by year's end," he said. "The buyer then would require another $1,100 down payment and the mortgage would be nearly $4,500 higher."

"Even if interest rates were to drop a full percent, and there are no sign that they will, the monthly payment would be $9 higher. Over the life of the mortgage, this would add some $3,300 to costs."

Cole noted that while median family incomes are rising at a much lower rate than home prices, they also will continue to grow.

"An added advantage of getting into the home market as soon as possible in the face of rising prices is that the greater share of today's mortgage commitment will be paid off in future deflated dollars," he said. "At the same time, the value of the home can be expected to keep pace with or even exceed the general inflationary trend."

Each teacher will take attendance at each class, and absences classified as excused or unexcused. Students legitimately needing to miss class are excused, if the parent calls the school, or even writes a note, at least by 4 p.m. the day following the absence.

Otherwise, the absence is unexcused.

Upon the third unexcused absence being recorded for a class during the semester, the teacher will notify the parents. Upon the fifth unexcused absence, an assistant principal will be notified and a parent conference arranged.

Bell said he likes the fact that the policy "has built into it communication with the parent."

Upon the seventh unexcused absence per semester, the student will be dropped from the course with a "F-withdraw" mark, and the parents will be notified.

There also are provisions in the policy to deal with the "problem" of excessive number of combined excused and unexcused absences, and it is possible that a student would be dropped for a total of 15 excused and unexcused absences.

On the whole, Bell said, the student who attends class and misses school only for legitimate reasons, should not be worried about the new policy.

Health screening for seniors is free; will begin tomorrow

Summer time may be a little slower for some folks, but not for area members of the September Days Senior Citizens.

Many activities are planned for them during August and one of the most important is a health screening from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. tomorrow (Aug. 9). Senior citizens can have their blood pressure and weight checked and have a urinalysis at the September Days Center, 46425 Tyler Rd., adjoining Van Buren Township Hall.

It is a free service to members of September Days Club and only a 50 cent donation for non-members. In addition, a special informational talk on Medicare will be presented at 10 a.m. tomorrow. "If people have questions, we want them to bring them when they come," said Mrs. Virginia Melcher, director.

"In fact, we urge all senior citizens to come and take advantage of the health screening as well as the many activities offered by our program."

Senior citizens were reminded that free physical examinations are being provided by Wayne County Health Dept. from now through Aug. 16. Persons should call 1-729-2211, extension 258 for appointment.

Another important date is Thursday, Aug. 30, when a representative of Social Security will be at the center to answer any questions or problems.

A representative of Social Security is at the center on the last Thursday of each month. The center is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. A nutritious meal is served daily at 12-noon at the Van Buren site, and also at the Huron and Sumpter sites.

A 50-cent donation is requested and persons planning to attend the noon meals are asked to call ahead for reservations on the Thursday before they will be coming.

For people who have no other means of transportation, there is a 12-passenger van available from the Parks and Recreation Dept. to bring senior citizens to the Van Buren Center for classes, activities, lunch program, social events, meetings, medical appointments and shopping trips.

Regularly scheduled recreation for senior citizens includes: exercise class, fund-raising projects, bingo and bunco, card games, holiday parties, pool, golf, bowling, trips, square dancing and round dancing.

Many trips and other activities fill this month's calendar. On Friday, Aug. 10, a food co-op, featuring homegrown produce, will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Last Saturday a large number of seniors left the township hall about 12:30 p.m. to visit Tiger Stadium in Detroit to watch the ball game between the Tigers and Kansas City Royals. After the game they were scheduled to have a chicken dinner at the Red Apple Restaurant in Belleville.

Other important events coming up include a corn roast and pot luck picnic dinner at 4 p.m. at Van Buren Park on Wed., Aug. 29.

Two days earlier, on Aug. 27, the ambitious seniors will attend the Fisher Theatre in Detroit to see "Sugar Babies" with Mickey Rooney and Ann Miller. They will leave the Senior Center at 6:45 p.m. for the 8 p.m. performance. Total cost of the transportation and show is $8.

There will be a "Back to School Round-up" — not for kids, but for seniors on 12-noon on Aug. 21. Van Buren Schools will be enrolling seniors for classes which begin in September.

New classes, including decorating, crafts for special occasions, exercise for mobility, floral design, woodcrafts, creative expression through dance, seminar on current events, bowling, movie day and creative writing, will be offered at the Van Buren Center.

"We owe a very big thank you to the Huron Schools who provided the program in the past," Mrs. Melcher said. "Huron will be servicing our New Boston and Waltz sites while Van Buren Schools will cover Sumpter and Belleville-Van Buren."

Bowling is just around the corner, too!

There will be a general meeting for regular bowlers, interested newcomers and beginners at the center on Friday, Sept. 7 at 1 p.m.

Paul Amburgy will be driving the senior citizens van on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, it was announced. Rose Drouillard will be doing telephone reassurance from New Boston Township Hall. She will also be signing up for trips, assembling and distributing newsletters to Huron Seniors, and assisting in programs in Huron Township.

Any senior citizens who would like to join the September Days group seek information may call Mrs. Melcher at 699-7474.

Oakbrooke shines in contest

Members of the Romulus Beautification Committee pause before an apartment in the Oakbrooke Townhouses during a recent beautification contest. All 352 units in the complex were judged for landscaping beauty based on originality, work involved, neatness, and variety of plant life. Republic Management, operators of the townhouses offered a $25 reward over the summer months to tenants who displayed the most beautiful yard. The beautification contest was the brainchild of Catherine Linck, director of resident relations at Oakbrooke. Romulus Beautification

Committee members gladly obliged in the judging as part of their city-wide program of property beautification. Each month a resident is honored for his or her contribution to improving the aesthetic quality of life in Romulus. This month's winner, in the Oakbrooke complex, is Helen Filipkowski of 30520 Redwood Ln. Her prize is $25 and a standard of excellence seal from the Beautification Committee. Bill allows limited strikes

New school laws also carry penalties

Legislation providing a limited right to strike for public school employees has been introduced by State Rep. William Keith (D-33rd District), who represents Inkster and Garden City.

The package of bills stipulates sanctions to penalize teachers and school boards financially when the 180 days of class instruction is endangered.

"School strikes have been technically illegal since 1947," Keith said. "However, teachers have been striking for several years. It is essential that we get legislation on the books to resolve the teacher strike problem and avoid difficulties, such as we faced in the Crestwood and Garden City schools in 1975."

Under the legislation, public school employees could not strike unless both the school board and school employees exhausted a voluntary mediation process and the Employment Relations Commission determined that an impasse had been reached according to specified guidelines.

After the commission determined that an impasse had been reached, a public hearing would be called. The employer, or the employees' representative, could file a petition for arbitration with the commission. If arbitration and further intensive bargaining were successful, the employees' bargaining unit could approve a strike in an election, supervised by the commission.

"There are economic pressures built into the legislation to encourage both parties to settle their differences," Keith said. "If a teacher strike prevented fulfillment of the 180 day requirement, there would be a deduction in the district's total state appropriation. Teachers would forfeit one day's pay for each day the requirement was not fulfilled."

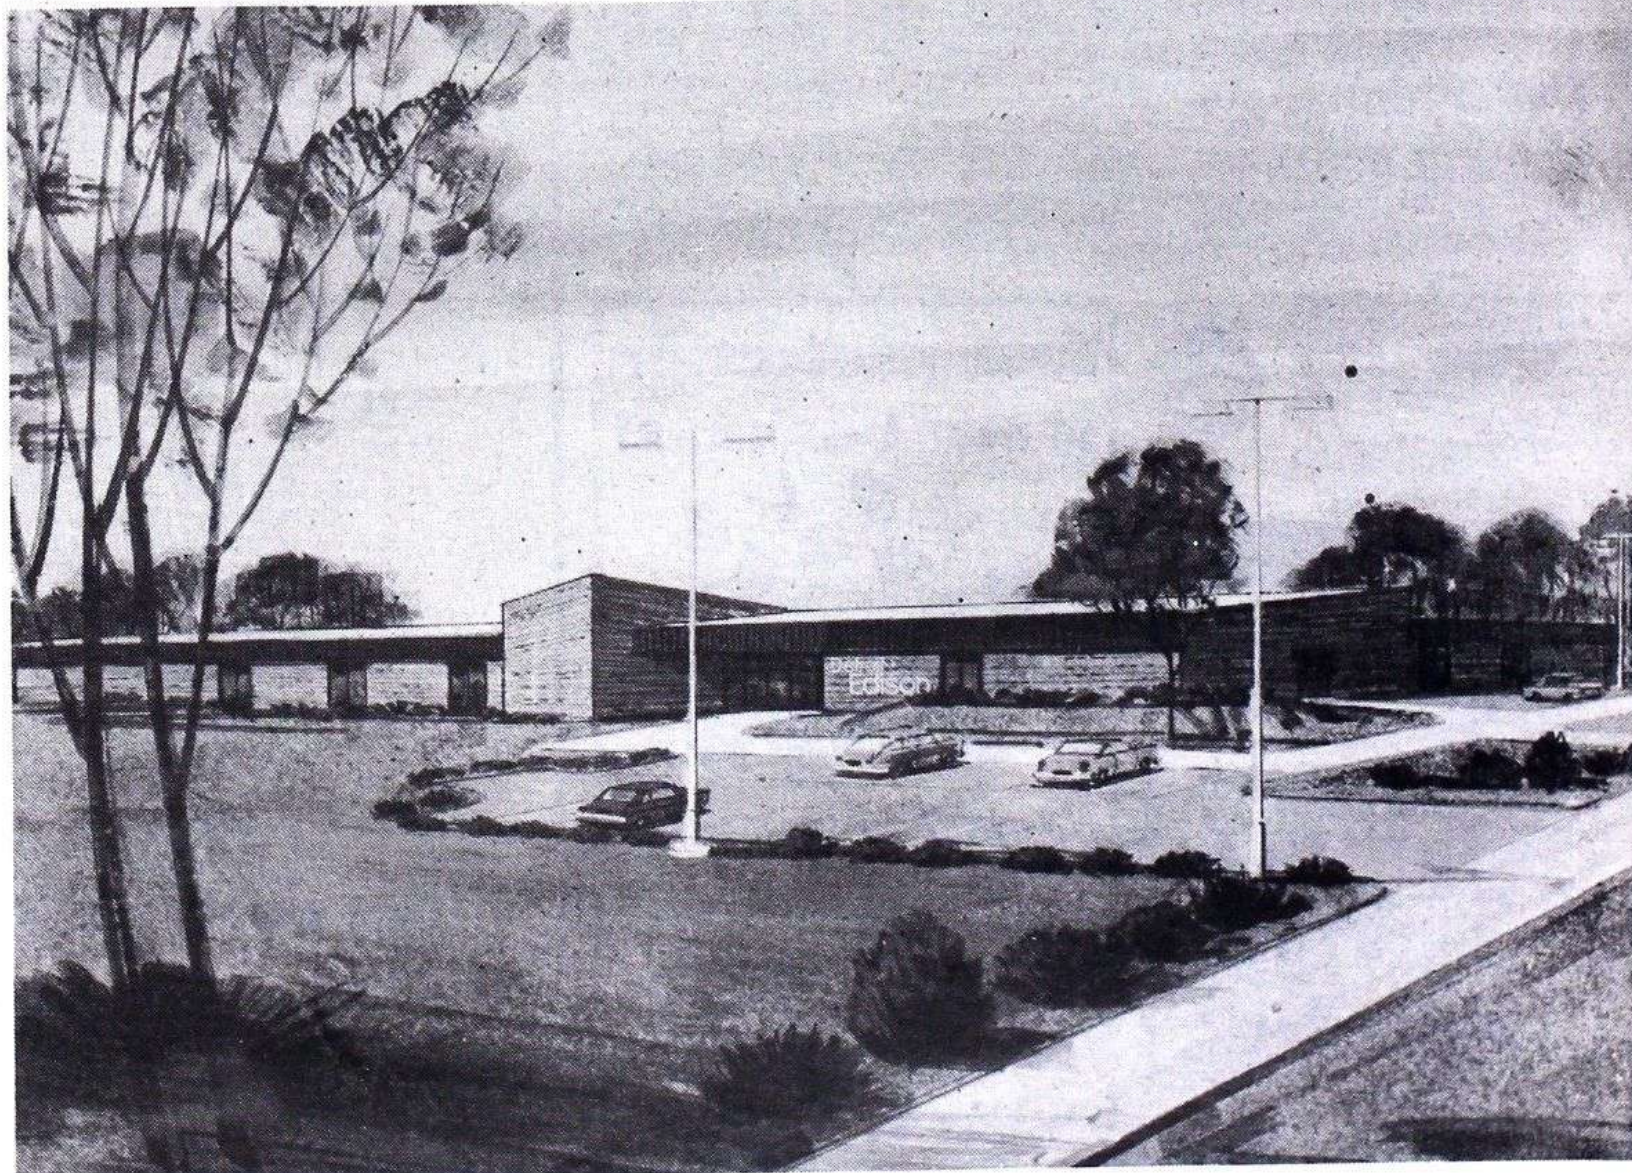

The bill includes a definition of the school calendar. Classes must end by the third Friday in June and the 180 days requirement would not include Saturdays, Sundays, holidays, strike days or professional development days.

In addition, the school year would have to include at least 10 vacation days after the first two weeks and before the last two weeks of the school year.

Keith said the bills also give the courts new authority to resolve impasses and provide improved criteria for injunctive relief. Provisions are made for restriction of the amount of interference with the private collective bargaining process, which has been resolving contract disputes without strikes in the majority of school districts.

"Similar legislation passed both Houses of the Legislature four years ago, only to be vetoed by the governor," Keith said. "We must stop playing partisan games with the kids and the taxpayers of this state and develop measures to reduce the number of extended school strikes. If we do nothing, we are asking for problems every school year."

VB site of area Edison division

Artist's sketch above shows what Detroit Edison's new Wayne Division Headquarters in Van Buren Township will look like when completed early next year. The new one story brick and block building will cost an estimated $3 million and will house some 250 company employees. Located on the east side of Haggerty Road just south of Ecorse Road, the new headquarters will serve Detroit Edison customers in western Wayne and northern Monroe counties. The new facility will replace space presently being leased in the city of Taylor.

ANP hires New Yorker

Recently appointed to the post of circulation manager for Associated Newspapers Inc. is David W. Roe, who has taken over the distribution of the Wayne, Westland and Canton Eagles, the Inkster Ledger Star, the Belleville Enterprise and the Romulus Roman.

Publisher David J. Willett said: "We feel he will make a significant contribution to solving circulation problems that have concerned the newspapers for the past few years."

"Roe will play an important part in the future of Associated Newspapers."

Prior to coming to Associated, Roe was circulation manager for the Taconic Press in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. He also has served as district supervisor for the Poughkeepsie Journal and circulation manager for the Lewistown Sentinel in Lewistown, Pa.

Roe, 27, holds a bachelor of arts degree in political science from the College of St. Rose in Albany, N.Y., and has worked on his master's degree at Rensselaer Polytechnical Institute in Troy, N.Y.

YWCA'S fall lineup puts emphasis on wide variety

A fall, filled with activities, has been scheduled by the YWCA of Western Wayne County, beginning with an open house from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Sept. 13.

Staff and instructors will be on hand to discuss and demonstrate the many activities available in an informal, festive setting of entertainment and refreshment.

YW "Travel Days" have become a very popular method of visiting fun places with congenial company. All outings include roundtrip transportation. The first of the season, Sept. 22, features harvest shopping at Eastern Market, lunch and browsing in Greektown. The Historic Home Tour of Marshall with a party luncheon at Win Schuler's is listed for Oct. 10. The Pre-Christmas trip to Frankenmuth was so popular last fall, that it has been rescheduled for Nov. 7. First stop is the fantasy world of Bronner's and then on to lunch at Zehnder's.

There's plenty of time after lunch to shop the village streets. Nov. 28 is Christmas at Meadow Brook Hall, while the tudor mansion is bedecked in holiday trim and florists' creations.

Overwhelmed by the response to "Travel Days" the YW has planned a 3-day tour (Oct. 19-21) to Nashville and Grand Ole Opry. Flight time is early Friday morning with return late Sunday. The price of $221 includes air fare transfers, tips, accommodations at the Gentry Inn, a guided tour of the stars' homes, reserved seats at the Grand Ole Opry, a day at Opryland and the opportunity for other options.

Reservations are being accepted through the summer at the YW. Call for a travel brochure.

Most classes and interest groups begin the week of Sept. 17. A complete aquatic program of mother-tot water adjustment, beginner, advanced beginner, intermediate, swimmer and basic rescue and water safety is offered for boys and girls, beginning Sept. 29 at Taylor Center High School. Older teens and women have a Tuesday night choice of beginning, intermediate and advanced classes, or a recreational swim.

Monday from 7 p.m. is disco night, starting Sept. 17, for six weeks. Slim Trim is on Tuesday at 7 p.m. for six weeks and Yoga on Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. for 10 weeks. Thursday is modern dance night at 7 p.m. and Saturday morning is adult ballet time at 10:30 a.m. Instruction is by top name area personalities Cheryl Toosen, Leslie Frederick, Jackie Wining, Karmala Bridges and Rosalie Ford.

The interest group activities are just as exciting. Peg Watson is doing a Tuesday morning "Gourmet Kitchen" series for five weeks, beginning Sept. 18. Peg spices her shrimp rockefeller and chocolate mousse with sparkling food conservation from her travels.

Harold Richardson, head director of furniture refinishing at Wiggs of Bloomfield is doing a "Furniture Touch up" series. You'll know how to remove white ring, burn, dent or scratch by working on a practice piece before tackling that precious piece at home.

Paula Boase of Taylor is repeating her popular Christmas macrame series. Beginners and experienced knot tiers will enjoy her choice selection of projects on Tuesday mornings.

Karmala Bridges, a fine arts major with lots of juried shows behind her is teaching weaving Tuesday evening and painting, choice of oil or acrylic, on Thursday evening. A do-it-yourself, no expense loom will give you all that's needed to learn the basics of weaving and create your personalized will hanging.

Gerald Joanis has led his bridge followers on to such enthusiasm that Thursday night is intermediate class time and Tuesday, starting Sept. 18 at 7:30 p.m., is Novice Duplicate Bridge night. Joanis feels that many are reluctant to join in the experienced duplicate bridge circuit. He promises to give patient help to all who join the Tuesday night novice game.

Dance Therapy is a rewarding Saturday morning experience in ballet movement, stretching, and some not work for physically and emotionally impaired children under the guidance of Rosalie Ford.

Museum exhibits Shakers' crafts

Shaker textiles recently acquired by Henry Ford Museum from the noted collection of Faith and Edward Deming Andrews are the focus of a special Shaker exhibit in the museum through Sept. 16.

The Andrews collection includes late 19th and early 20th century men's and women's clothing and domestic textiles such as towels, blankets and sheeting.

Additional Shaker artifacts from existing museum collections are shown with the Andrews items.

The Shakers, a religious group founded in England in 1747, came to New York State in 1774. Shaker communities were noted for their industriousness and the quality of their products. Shaker design stressed utility and simplicity—qualities that today translate into beauty and account for much of the appeal of Shaker goods.

Included in the exhibit are rare articles of men's clothing, such as glazed cotton and linen trousers, frocks (worn over shirt and trousers by land laborers) and cotton shop coats. Women's cloaks, dresses, silk aprons, kerchiefs and bonnets are shown, as well as doll cloaks, sewing notions and materials sold in the Shakers' gift shops.

Large graphics depicting aspects of Shaker life and explanatory labels assist visitors in interpreting the exhibit.

There is no charge for the Shaker exhibit beyond the Museum admission of $3.75 for adults and $1.75 for children 6-12. Children under 6 are admitted free. For further information, call (313) 271-1620.

Skating benefit planned

Skateland West is holding a Jerry Lewis Skate-a-thon to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) on Aug. 26.

Susan Cahill, the rink operator, is joining many of her 1,500 fellow members of the nationwide Roller Skating Rink Operators Association (RSROA), who also will be holding these special skating events to help Jerry Lewis conquer muscle diseases for "his kids."

The skate-a-thon event will be a "sponsorship method" of fund raising. Skaters contact as many friends, relatives, neighbors, businessmen as possible. Sponsors are asked to donate any amount—a contribution which will allow the skater to participate in the event.

Skateland West's Skate-a-thon is scheduled to roll from 7 p.m. to midnight, and skaters are urged to sign up as soon as possible at the rink, which is located at 37550 Cherry Hill in Westland. The event will be open to the public and will feature a number of door prizes and other attractions.

This is the rink's second annual skate-a-thon. Proceeds from the event will be presented on the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon seen locally over WJBK-TV 2.

Ms. Cahill said she's "delighted to be a part of Jerry's fight against muscular dystrophy. Skate-a-thons like this help raise the funds needed to help the hundreds of thousands of adults and children alike, who suffer from dread muscle-wasting diseases." Last year Skateland West raised more than $12,000 with the help of 274 skaters from the local area.

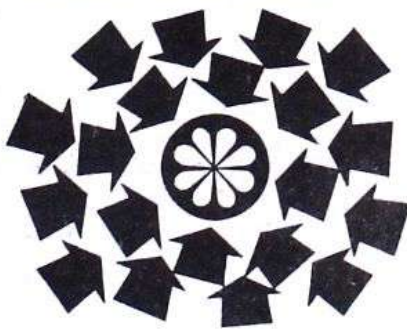

Ms. Cahill added that the money raised by her and other RSROA rinks' skate-a-thons helps support MDA's network of 10 university based research-clinical centers, as well as more than 180 hospital-affiliated MDA clinics, that offer patients a wide range of medical services free of charge.

In addition, MDA also funds more than 400 individual research projects seeking cures or effective treatments for some 35 neuromuscular disorders covered by MDA's programs.

The most valuable asset of a family is that everyone is enjoying good health.

Chiropractic has been the method of choice for restoring health and vitality to millions of families throughout the world. More and more intelligent people everywhere are realizing good health is gained and maintained only when a normal flow of nerve energy flows from the brain, down the spinal cord, and out between important spinal vertebrae to our vital body organs and tissues.

Baby Sally's colic may be caused by spinal pressure on the nerves which lead to the millions of glands that carry out the digestive processes. Gentle spinal adjustments are administered to normalize your baby's spine.

Mother's migraine headaches are usually caused by a severe spinal twist at the base of the brain. That's why the headache usually occurs on one side of the head. When mother becomes tense and excited the neck muscles tense up, pulling the vertebrae tighter against the spinal cord. Once the cause of her headaches is corrected, she will once again be the happy, healthy, and loving mother she should be.

Regardless of the health problem you or any member of your family may have, it is entirely possible that your family chiropractor can replace despair and sorrow with glowing health and happiness.

Spinal pressure and tension on sensitive, delicate nerves may cause many diseases. Chiropractors are especially trained to analyze and correct spinal distortions, thereby preventing further disability, suffering, and expense.

Residents' input sought on revising preservation plan

Now is the time for all concerned Canton Township residents to come to the aid of their township government, says community planner James Kosteva.

To be exact, citizen assistance is urged for August 15, at 7 p.m. at the Plymouth Salem High School auditorium where residents will be asked for their direct input on revising the township adopted 1976 farmland preservation Master Plan.

The theme of the public hearing will be to discuss proposed residential, commercial, and industrial growth for Canton.

"Or if persons just think they have a better idea on how their area should be developed, we strongly urge them to attend," Kosteva said. "Because this is the prime opportunity for residents to have input."

The Master Plan hearing will entail future land use projections and proposals, which will act as a guideline for development when the township implements the master plan through a master zoning ordinance.

The public hearing on the master zoning ordinance is expected to be scheduled sometime in the Fall.

Kosteva urges public participation at both hearings.

Issues of discussion August 15, though entirely dependent on residents' interests, could range from, whether Canton should develop a downtown business community, to whether more multiple housing is needed.

Regarding the commerce community there are essentially three options for development available for citizen discussion.

The first option suggests Ford Road — well on its way to being the major commercial area — continue its course of development as it has been since the early 1970's.

The second option is for a downtown business district, similar to that of Dearborn or Wayne, where stores are situated closer to the road, parking is in the rear, and each within walking distance from the next.

A combination of two business communities on Ford Road is the third option. Along Ford Road, between Lilley Road and Lotz Road, near the I-275 freeway, the businesses could be designed to cater to the motoring public.

"It could be designed more for a regional use," Kosteva said such as for motels, hotels, gasoline stations, new and used car dealerships and large restaurants.

Then from Lilley Road to Oakview Road (near Sheldon Road), there would be a break in the commercial development, with residential units.

"This would be very desirable, because it would allow for a break in traffic and would lessen traffic congestion," Kosteva.

From Oakview Road to Canton Center Road, the businesses would be of a "community use" nature, less highway oriented.

"Again residential in between would keep the two commercial areas from competing against each other," said Kosteva.

Kosteva said there was considerable merit in the first option for Ford Road's development. A downtown business community styled after the downtowns of yesteryear might be worthy of returning to in today's gas crunch atmosphere.

"It has possibilities. The stores would be within walking distance and in this energy crisis, saying fuel would be a good argument," he said.

Another factor to be considered in developing Ford Road, is whether residents desire two business communities, Ford Road and, for instance, also along Canton's southernmost Michigan Avenue corridor.

The Michigan Avenue corridor is planned for light industrial and restricted offices, but if market demands were such that commercial could be supported, then revisions could be made, he said.

"The thing is that one man's concern will have impact on another. Each concern interplays with others, and we have to look not just at an individual's concern, but also on how it affects the area he lives in, and how the area affects his desired land use," said Kosteva.

Residential development is another concern Kosteva said citizen input was needed on before a revised master plan be completed.

The 1976 Master Plan stipulates that in the township's easterly half, along the I-275 corridor a good portion of the land now zoned for multiple housing (under the 1967 Master Zoning ordinance) is being revised to designate single family homes and light industrial development.

"Although if we're going to be energy efficient there can be a case made for multiple housing since it does require less fuel to maintain," said Kosteva.

"But the fight for or against any of the issues is up to the people to make," he said. "It's not a time to hear from the planners, but a time to hear from the citizens."

MUSICAL NOTES

by Doug Brown

Ravi Shankar, the Indian sitar player, has probably done more than any other person to bridge the gap between the music of the east and the west. He has been a performer and student of music all his life and is well known in India for his skill and knowledge. It was in the 1960's that he made his biggest impact on the west when he appeared as the guest of the Beatles. Soon, the sitar was heard in rock bands, and the sitar itself was taken up as an instrument in its own right.

Our staff at DOUG BROWN MUSIC, 9219 S. Wayne Rd., Romulus, 941-8484 has the necessary knowledge and skill to help you make the right decision when it comes to choosing a piano or organ. The pleasure and self-satisfaction in making your own kind of music adds up to a very special kind of fun. Master Charge, Visa and convenient budget terms available. Heritage accents festival

During a period of rising prices and significant inflation, most people don't believe a pocketful of change can provide much in the way of family fun. "Not So!" say promoters of the Ypsilanti Yesteryear Heritage Festival, taking place Aug. 24-26.

Sponsored by the Visitors and Convention Bureau of the Ypsilanti Area Chamber of Commerce, the celebration will offer activities focusing on Ypsilanti's unique historical district and Depot Town. "Something for everyone" is the bill of fare during this event and many activities are free.

Highlighting the Yesteryear Festival will be Tino Wallenda, the well known high-wire acrobat formerly with the famous Flying Wallendas. Performances will take place twice daily in Depot Town's Frog Island Park, beginning at 1 p.m. on Aug. 24. Working at a height of more than 50 feet, without the aid of nets or safety devices, Tino presents a most thrilling routine.

Ypsilanti's abundant heritage will be on display for the public with 22 homes, churches and public buildings on tour. Tickets for the tour are available in advance, or during the festival. A special treat is scheduled for Aug. 26 when the famous Ypsilanti Water Tower offers an open house at 1 p.m.

Ypsilanti's history will be featured in many other ways besides the building tours and open houses. These include special displays and exhibits in Depot Town, downtown and Eastern Michigan University. There also will be many antique automobiles on display, including the first oldsmobile built with a General Motors Hydramatic Transmission.

Although the festival theme is one of history, the majority of activities are designed to entertain folks of all ages. There will be 150 booths in Depot Town featuring arts, crafts, antiques and exhibitions on quilting and glass blowing. Depot Town also is the location of continuous public stage entertainment including dancing, theatre, magic, act, Dixieland jazz, barbershop quartets and Sweet Adelins, country-western music, clowns and many more acts.

Children of all ages also will revel in the spirit of celebration with the many fine activities offered especially for them. These include a 10-ride carnival on the Washington Street Promenade, a parade on Friday morning, appearances by Ronald McDonald and the Big Mac Wagon and Mr. Up and Down the Down Donut Clown, Covered Wagon rides, Saturday night street disco dance, float race on the Huron River, frog jumping contest in Riverside Park, old time movies at the Community Education Center and youth field games in Frog Island Park.

No festival is complete without lots of good food. The yesteryear celebration will offer a sidewalk cafe, fresh produce from the New Farmer's Market, bake sales galore, hot dog and pizza stands, chicken barbeque, German dinner, pancake breakfast, ice cream socials and other food and beverage concessions.

Additional activities include a 1930s jazz dance, featuring the Austin-Moro Band on Friday evening, sponsored by WEMU Radiol a square dance demonstration clinic by the Merry Squares in Frog Island Park on Saturday evening, a theatrical production of "Winesburg, Ohio" by the Ypsilanti Arts Council and the First Annual Heritage Road Rally, sponsored by the Ypsilanti Corvette Club.

Plenty of parking will be available for the festival. In addition to downtown lots and city streets, there will be parking on 11 acres of land at Harriet Street and I-94. A festival information booth staffed by the Ypsilanti Area Jaycees will also be located at this site. Shuttle buses will run continuously from this site and parking lots on the campus of Eastern Michigan University to Depot Town.

Brochures and additional festival information may be obtained by calling the Ypsilanti Area Chamber of Commerce at 482-4920, or writing 11 N. Adams St. Ypsilanti 48197.

Through Rep. Bullard

Guide to lobbying now available

State Rep. Perry Bullard of Ann Arbor has announced that a "Citizen's Guide to Lobbying" for the legislative session 1979-80 now is available to citizens.

This is the third session this popular lobbying guide has been printed for public use.

The informative booklet offers advice and suggestions for effective citizen lobbying, as well as names, addresses, offices, telephone numbers and pictures of all members of the House and Senate.

The booklet also includes maps and descriptions of all House and Senate districts and lists the members of the House and Senate standing committees, subcommittees and joint committees. It gives the addresses, telephone numbers and directors of state department, explains how a bill becomes law and contains other useful information of state government.

The theme of the "Guide" is Bullard's belief that "an informed and active citizenry is the lifeblood of a democracy."

"There is a great need for an increase in general citizen impact on the decision-making process between elections," Bullard said. "The voice of the public too is often heard only at election time. However, individual communication on specific legislative proposals at the appropriate time does have an impact."

"Organized community and citizens' groups can multiply the impact of this individual effort. The intent of this 'Citizen's Guide' is to provide some of the specific information needed to get in touch with the right people at the right time in order to make the individual's state government policy concerns heard."

In order to make it easier for citizens to express concern about a particular bill or proposal, Bullard recommends you write to your own legislator first. Be as clear as possible and give accurate facts supporting your position on the issue. If interested in a particular bill without knowing the name or number, write the legislator you think introduced the bill.

Copies can be obtained free of charge by contacting Bullard at Room 560, Roosevelt Building, State Capitol, Lansing 48909; or by calling (517) 373-2577.

This year, a number of other legislators have also printed versions of the "Citizen's Guide to Lobbying". Copies are available upon request from the offices of Representatives Mary Ballentine (Jackson), Connie Binsfeld (Maple

Of Wayne's northside improvements

Experts tell merchants what to expect

BY MAUREEN CAMPS
ANP Staff Writer

A subdued but attentive audience of about 40 Wayne businessmen, residents and officials listened to a panel of "experts" tell them what the city and merchants might do and can do to renovate the admittedly "deteriorating" northside business district along Wayne Road from Glenwood to the Lower Rouge River. The audience heard, among other things, that:

- the major county thoroughfare through that section of town, Wayne Road, will probably be resurfaced next year, but there are no plans to widen it, a bit of information that surprised many in the audience;
- the county will consider suggestions from the city regarding

- such items as a traffic signal at Wayne Road and Elm, and curb alignments to make the road more uniform;
- the city is still considering a design concept developed three years ago that would convert Elm, Ash and Chestnut streets to cul-de-sacs with no outlet onto Wayne Road, and create more parking areas;
- but the city is not tied to that concept design, and it could and might be altered, phased or dropped;
- the city has $100,000 in Community Development money coming next year that it could spend on the northside area development;
- if Wayne Road is not going to be widened, the city will go ahead and begin a sidewalk program to re-pave cracked and split sidewalks;

- there are tax abatement and incentive programs the city can utilize to help merchants finance renovations of their buildings;
- and a "design theme" for buildings may be the next step to hammer out between merchants and the city.

The audience seemed relieved to hear that the city was open to suggestions, ready to work with merchants and provide long-needed and still-needed leadership, and agreeable to the suggestion from a businessman that the project of renovation be done over a period of time that won't traumatize the area.

The two-and-a-half hour session at the Community Center, moderated by Mayor Paul Lada and Chamber of Commerce President David Willett, began with presentations given by the panel of experts invited to the informational forum.

A representative of the Wayne County Road Commission said that the county will probably be participating in a federal urban aid program to resurface the section of Wayne Road from Glenwood to the Rouge River, but there is "no new construction out of the existing right of way" scheduled or planned.

This statement came as a surprise to businessmen and city officials who said they had heard rumors of road widening for years, and the uncertainty of road widening had kept some businessmen from doing any substantial remodeling, and had kept the city from re-paving sidewalks.

A representative from the architectural firm of William Kessler and Associates, which drew up a conceptual plan for the area that created more parking behind shops and changed the residential streets to cul-de-sacs, reviewed that plan.

The scheme calls for development of vacant land with new businesses and installation of parking areas, plus sidewalk sprucing up with "street furniture," landscaping and such.

Mayor Lada then commented that the plan's basic problem is "in the area of funding," although he emphasized at least twice that the conceptual scheme could be altered after input from businessmen and citizens is heard.

A representative of the Michigan Department of Economic Development, and an attorney from the law firm of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, discussed tax incentives and abatements the city can offer merchants, or other ways the city can raise money, to finance a renovation program.

The need for a strong merchants association in the area was emphasized, so that the businessmen could not only work with the city through the association, but make decisions for their own use in their individual efforts to renovate businesses.

Willett responded to one audience question by telling the group that the chamber plans to conduct a survey regarding the northside business area, asking shoppers what types of businesses are in demand there, and finding out shoppers' attitudes towards different shopping areas.

Northside businessman Bill Garrett seemed eager to participate in the renovation program, and proposed a second meeting, getting together his neighboring businesses, the city, and county road commission to talk about such things as a design scheme, and tax abatement possibilities.

He noted, however, that the whole concept scheme might take 20 years to complete, and done all at once would be "too elaborate."

Little was said about the component of the conceptual plan that would call for condemning of homes and creation of parking, although one businessman said he wasn't sure all that new parking was needed, and another suggested that the city buy homes only as they come up for sale in the next 20 years. That idea went along with the suggestion to implement the plan over a number of years.

Willett pointed out that the grumblings heard in the past over condemning houses and creating cul-de-sacs should not prevent things from happening, as long as communication continues.

It appears that the immediate outgrowths from the meeting will be new sidewalks, a meeting to be scheduled soon with merchants and the city, a chamber survey, and a new dialogue between the city and county about improvements to Wayne Road that the city hopes to secure.

Ms. Clark named top listing leaders

Realtor associate Beverly Clark of Realty World-Pinsky-Jordan, located on Main Street in Belleville, has been named Realty World's Top Listing Leader in the state for the month of April.

Ms. Clarke had accumulated 32 listings through her own efforts during that month.

The firm's sales force of 15 associates also attained sufficient real estate listings to be named Top Listing Office for the entire state-wide region in April. The firm had two associates — Debbie Daniel and David Douglas — who were dubbed members of the $100,000 Sales Club that month, along with Ms. Clarke.

Many of the listings which helped Ms. Clark achieve her state honors were the result of the successful sale of a single home to a residential builder the previous month.

Her professionalism in the transaction so impressed the builder that she walked away with all the listings on his newly constructed homes in Arsenal Heights in Brownstown Township. According to her broker, David Jordan, the homes currently on the market there are in the $75,000 to $80,000 price range and up.

She started with the REALTY WORLD - Pinsky-Jordan firm two years ago and plans to specialize in commercial development properties.

A realtor associate of the Down River Board of Realtors and the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors, Ms. Clarke resides in Belleville. She originally is from California, where she had been a purchasing agent for a pharmaceutical laboratory.

State's forts, villages recall Michigan's past

To relive Michigan history, take a trip to a restored Army fort or 19th century village, explore the mysteries of an Upper Peninsula ghost town, buy some penny candy in an old-time country store or visit an Indian burial ground.

Fort-hopping will take travelers from Detroit west to Niles and north to Mackinaw City, Mackinac Island and Copper Harbor.

At Detroit's Old Fort Wayne, completed in 1851, visitors can see the original stone barracks and powder magazine while touring exhibits depicting the city's military history.

While not a fort, Niles' Fort St. Joseph Museum contains artifacts of a one-time military post built in 1691 and held at various times by French, British and Spanish troops.

A trip to the Straits of Mackinac brings travelers to Mackinaw City's Fort Michilimackinac, where the 1763 capture of the British fort by the Indians is re-enacted every Memorial Day, and to Mackinac Island's Fort Mackinac, dating from 1781.

At Michigan's northernmost tip, Fort Wilkins State Park near Copper Harbor holds the last original wood fort east of the Mississippi River.

St. Stephens plans annual church fest

St. Stephen Church of New Boston will hold its 31st annual festival on the parish grounds, Huron River Drive near Sibley Road, Aug. 18 and 19.

Hours for both days will be noon to 10 p.m.

There will be roast beef dinners Saturday and barbecued chicken dinners Sunday noon to 6 p.m. (rain or shine). Carry-outs will be available. Kielbasa, hamburgers, hot dogs and pizza will be available both days.

Cash prizes of $5,000, plus eight other prizes will be given away. There will be games, prizes, refreshments, rides, live music and bingo. All events are under cover.

Saturday there will be music by Benny Boc from 5 to 9 p.m. A special attraction Saturday from 4 to 8 p.m. will be Hi-Lo the White Faced Clown. Hi-Lo, who is eight feet tall, creates animals from balloons.

Sunday The Heidebergers will provide music from 12 to 4 p.m. and Benny Boc from 4:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Blue grass festival aids in research

Huntington's Disease is a killer, and those persons who drop in for a day of fun and music at Northville will be helping to fight the dreaded disease.

The event is the third annual Folk and Bluegrass Festival, which will run from 1 p.m. to dark at the stadium. Featured performers at the all-day affair will be internationally known Josh White Jr., The Michigan Consolidated Grass, Home Grown Grass and Phoenix, plus many more.

Proceeds from the festival will be donated for research for a cure of the disease. Northville businessman Tom Rice, whose sister died of Huntington's Disease, is sponsoring the event.

Donations, with a minimum of $3 will be accepted at the gate for the music festival. The Northville High School football field is located on Eight Mile Road west of Center Street (Sheldon Road).

Health department sets diabetes class

Diabetics and their families can learn about the condition of diabetes mellitus, its control and treatment and the relationship of diet in classes being sponsored by the Wayne County Department of Health.

A series of classes for diabetics and their families will begin Sept. 10 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the South Health Center, 21201 Eureka Road, Taylor, and continue for five consecutive Monday evenings.

The importance of the diabetic's cooperation with his physician is stressed, along with patient's responsibility in caring for himself in order to lead an active, normal life. All diabetics regardless of age may attend with written acknowledgment from their physician. Children under 14 should be accompanied by a parent.

To register for the class call the Wayne County Department of Health at 274-2800 or 729-2211, ext. 390.

Cadet Daniel nets promotion to PFC

The son of Mrs. Jane A. Klesch of Lighthouse Drive, Belleville, recently was promoted to the rank of private first class at the Howe Military School Summer Camp.

David Aaron Daniel's promotion was announced by camp director William S. Hicks.

Operated since 1921 at Cedar Lake, 3 1/2 miles from the Howe Military School campus in Howe, Ind., the 6-week camp offers complete athletic, recreational and academic (mathematics and English) programs for boys 8 through 14 years. There credit academic programs in mathematics and English for boys 15 through 17 years.

David, a fifth grader, is attending the camp for the first time.

Built in 1844, the stockade's whitewashed buildings are filled with furniture, tools, clothing and other relics of the past.

Horse-drawn carriages and a steam locomotive take visitors back through time at Greenfield Village in Dearborn. Nineteenth century buildings in this famous collection of Americana include the home where Noah Webster completed his first dictionary and an inn from the old Detroit-to-Chicago stagecoach route.

More than a dozen buildings from the last century plus a recreation area and lake are seen by visitors who take the steam locomotive ride at Crossroads Village near Flint.

Michigan's logging era is the subject of one of the displays at Lake City's Guest Country Store Museum, a complex of three old school buildings.

The elegant homes of two 19th century lumber barons can be toured at Muskegon's Heritage Village. Another one-time home of lumber barons, Huron City in the Thumb, was destroyed by fire in 1881 and rebuilt. Today, its Restored Lumber Town boasts a museum, 19th century general store and Coast Guard station.

Charlton Park Village and Museum near Hastings has 10 buildings from the 1800s, including a stagecoach inn, blacksmith shop and bank. Northville's Mill Race Historical Village features a cottage where visitors can purchase work by the Northville Weavers' Guild. Highlight of Livonia's Quaker Acres is a museum in a Quaker House built in 1846 for religious worship.

Ludington's first home is included in Pioneer Village, which sits atop a Lake Michigan bluff. Also in west Michigan are three attractions with windmills. Fremont's Windmill Gardens has nine restored mills, including a century-old windmill. A 200-year-old Dutch windmill is the center of Windmill Island at Holland, and both miniature windmills and wooden shoes are among the souvenirs available at nearby Dutch Village.

Two Upper Peninsula ghost towns which tell the history of Michigan's mining era are Victoria, south of Ontonagon, and Fayette, in Fayette State Park near Garden. Victoria is a 100-year-old copper mining town with three restored log cabins open for tours. Fayette, an 1880s iron smelting center, has five restored buildings, including an opera house and lime kiln.

Penny candy is only one of the items for sale at Rockford's Squires Street Square, a collection of restored shops offering everything from handmade candles and furniture to quilting supplies and antiques. Hungry shoppers can dine at the Old Mill on the Rogue River.

The country store atmosphere is everywhere at Apple Barrel Farms near Washington, where buildings dating back to the 1860s have been made into shops selling home baked goods, stained glass items and antiques. Center of attention is the Octagon House, an 8-sided home which has been designated a National Historic Landmark.

Indian artifacts from the Ottawa, Chippewa and Potawatomi tribes are displayed in the Great Lakes Museum at Cross Village near Harbor Springs. Nearby is an Indian burial ground. The town was named for the rustic white cross which was raised on the spot where Father Jacques Marquette came ashore 300 years ago.

Can transcendental meditation work as well everywhere to cut down on crime as it reportedly did in Rhode Island?

After 300 TM meditators spent three months meditating in that state of one million people, murders were down 50 percent, traffic deaths dropped 48 percent, suicides plunged 45 percent and even total deaths declined 11 percent.

Of course, there never are very many murders in Rhode Island. There were only six in the whole state in July and August 1977. There were three in those same months of 1978 — when the meditators were there — and that, to be sure, is a 50 percent drop.

To put it another way, it is also only three fewer murders than the year before. When you are dealing with such small numbers, it could be precarious to place too much significance on gains or losses of 50 percent.

But anything is worth a try, and if the TM meditators feel they can bring a turn-around in the number of homicides wherever they go, let's invite 'em to meditate in our town.

Joe Boxerman, one of the meditators participating in the Rhode Island experiment (they meditated twice a day for an hour over a period of three months), was also one of 120 TM meditators who went to Nicaragua late last year. He says conditions in that country were remarkably improved during the time the meditators were there.

Civil war had been expected to erupt at any moment, but didn't. President Anastasio Somoza agreed to elections. Curfews were removed.

All this changed when the meditators left. Things in Nicaragua got even worse than they were before the meditators arrived in that Central American country.

Boxerman, analyzing this dramatic reversal of conditions, says that there appears to be no carryover in the effects of meditation. When you stop meditating, the good effects cease.

There is plenty of evidence that TM-style meditation has good effects on individuals who do their own meditating.

After testing students of TM, doctors have concluded that TM improves body functions and lowers the breathing rate and cardiac output. The result is relief from anxiety and emotional stress and improvement in the general quality of life.

What is open to doubt — and even ridicule — is TM's claim that a community's crime rate can be reduced significantly, if enough people practice TM.

That idea originated with the high guru of TM, Maharishi Mahesh

Yogi, whose Westernized version of an ancient Indian practice has inspired two best-sellers — "TM: Discovering Energy and Overcoming Stress," by Harold Bloomfield, and "The Relaxation Response," by Herbert Benson. Both authors are medical doctors.

It was the Maharishi's conviction that not only personal conflicts, but social conflicts — war, murders, violence, even auto accidents — have their origins in the accumulation of individual tensions.

He figured if only 1 percent of the population practiced TM, the resulting outflow of "Good vibrations" would have a calming effect on huge numbers of even non-meditators all at once — freeing their nervous systems of the tensions that contribute to the onset of social ills.

In W-W School District

Early retirement plan approved for teachers

By MAUREEN CAMPS
ANP Staff Writer

An early retirement incentive program, adopted last week by the Wayne-Westland Board of Education, is being offered to teachers in the district who are 55 years old and have 30 years of teaching seniority, at least 10 years in this district.

The plan offers the teacher the supplemental retirement benefit that pays out a percentage of their top scale salary each year until age 62 — 28 percent of the salary for those with bachelor's degrees, and 36 percent for those with master's degrees or above. At age 62, the monetary amount changes to $4,000 per year until age 65, when the normal retirement program supplied teachers by the state kicks in. Teachers who accept the early retirement program before Sept. 2 of this year (there are 90 people eligible to take advantage of it) can join the plan as described above. And any teacher who retired in the past year who would have been eligible will be picked up retroactively, according to Art Elander, the district's director of personnel.

The plan will then change somewhat after Sept. 2. Rather than pay out the flat 28 percent or 36 percent, the annual payout will begin at that amount the first year of retirement, then decline by 2 percent each year to age 62.

Elander noted that after the employee retires, if the teacher contract is renegotiated to set a higher maximum salary, the retired teacher's payout will be based on the higher figure each year. So the 2 percent drop each year in the percentage of salary to be paid out should offset for that union negotiated increase, Elander said.

Only those teachers who have reached the top of the salary schedule, which is attained after 10 years with the district, are eligible.

Presently, the top salary of a teacher with a bachelor's degree is $21,450. Top salary for a teacher with a master's degree is $25,260, Elander said.

Therefore if a master's degree teacher retired right now under the program, he would be receiving at least $9,000 a year (and more as future contracts are negotiated)

2 W-W trustees call plan 'unfair'

The early retirement incentive program adopted by the Wayne-Westland Board of Education last week in a hotly debated split vote is "unfair to the teachers and to the community" according to board member Fred Warmbier. He, along with Gerard McGrath, cast no votes on the adoption of the plan.

"We bought a Rolls Royce as far as I'm concerned," Warmbier said. He criticized it for having too many "goodies" in it, then emphasized that as far as he can see, the program is illegal anyway.

He said that an attorney general opinion has declared the program to be illegal, and that at this time the legality of it is being challenged in a court suit involving the Rochester schools. However, when that decision comes out in Circuit Court, and he said the decision is due soon, it probably will be appealed, and the issue left to the Supreme Court ultimately.

"Why do we have to act on this program now, when the court is so close to rendering a decision (in the Rochester case)?" he asked.

And what happens if teachers in Wayne-Westland opt for the program, and in two years it's declared illegal? If the teacher has sold his home and moved to another state to enjoy his retirement with his supplemental income, will he simply until the amount dropped to $4,000 during the last three years, approximately a $75,600 payout over 10 years, plus continued coverage in some areas of fringe benefits, such as health insurance.

School Supt. Timothy Dyer, in explaining the plan, insisted that the program will not cost the district money, and will, in fact save money.

The primary motive for early retirement incentives is to get rid of teachers through attrition, since declining enrollment of 1,000 students per year is expected for the next 10 years. Rather than go through the trauma of layoffs every year (Elander estimated that the district would need to shed 50 to 60 teachers a year because of dropping student count), the hope is that the loss of teachers would take place through retirement.

When the lower seniority teachers are laid off, the cost of unemployment compensation must be taken into account, and, of course, their salaries are lower. So the payout to early retirees would be no more expensive than the layoff of an equal number of teachers.

A running thread through the discussion, too, although not particularly emphasized, is the notion that younger, less seniority teachers are just beginning their careers, with bright, fresh ideas, whereas the teachers with 30 years experience might be "waning" in enthusiasm for their profession.

Before this incentive program was adopted, teachers who were eligible to retire were simply not doing it, Elander noted. And federal law now permits teachers to remain until age 70. Hard economic times have drastically reduced the number of teachers going on leave, resigning and retiring, from 71 persons in 1977, to only 22 so far this year. And teachers on leave may, and often do, come back.

Elander noted that there are "safeguards" in the program that the administration believes protect the board and save as much money as possible. For instance, if an early retired teacher has a spouse who is covered through his separate health plan, the retired teacher must go to that plan and is dropped from the districts. Any unemployment compensation obtained by the teacher is deducted from his retirement payment.

Also, the district need only offer the program to the number of teachers it needs to reduce. If 20 teacher positions are no longer needed, only 20 teachers will be allowed to partake of the program. The district must offer at least 10 a year. And if the district finds it is losing money on the program in the future, it can abolish the retirement incentive, Elander said. (That would not affect teachers already retired).

Elander noted that if a court ruling would invalidate the program, it would be null and void, and teachers retired under it would be offered the opportunity to come back.

PEST OF THE WEEK

BIRCH LEAF MINER

This insect mines out the center of birch leaves during June, July, and August causing leaves to blister and turn brown. Leaf damage and the resulting defoliation can be heavy.

The adult, a small 1/8 inch fly lays its eggs on the leaf beginning in May. A small white larvae hatches and begins to mine the leaf in early June.

To control the birch leaf miner, spray Orthene or Malathion or Diazinon or Sevin to the foliage before the mines exceed 3/8 inch. Make two to three applications 10 days apart beginning mid to late May.

Inkster charter panel, council exchange barbs

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

A magician couldn't do a better sleight-of-hand maneuver than the "here today, gone tomorrow" matter of a date to vote on the proposed Charter for Inkster. Several times when it appeared the election date was ready to be set during the past year, something delayed it.

The two antagonists in the ensuing drama are the Charter Commission and Inkster City Council. Some members of the commission charge that city council members and City Clerk Betty Miller have used delaying tactics to stall a vote on the proposed charter, which city officials publicly state they do not want to see passed. However, city council and the city clerk steadfastly contend they are following the present charter completely in everything they do.

Meanwhile, some who worked on the Charter Commission contend that, because present city officials oppose the proposed charter, they have thrown roadblocks in the way of the commission ever since they were elected by the people of Inkster back in 1976. Especially outspoken in this view is Edward Bivens Jr., who resigned the commission to run for mayor, commission chairman William Tegge and secretary-treasurer Jane Ross.

The latest in the continuing saga of setting an election date for the proposed charter is the hearing tomorrow morning in Judge George T. Martin's circuit courtroom.

Judge Martin will reconsider his July 6 order that City Council and the city clerk, its agent, set the election date for Sept. 11. He had earlier ruled that Sept. 11 would be the charter election date unless the Wayne County Election Commission objected. Since the county did object, it was tossed back to the courtroom for Judge Martin to decide.

Since City Council and the Charter Commission have both approved the Nov. 6 general election date to have the proposed charter election, it is possible Judge Martin may approve that date.

In a related issue, last week's Ledger-Star's story on the continuing charter battle stated that several Charter Commissioners were upset because the final draft of the proposed charter was proof read by the city clerk. City Clerk Betty Miller informed the Ledger-Star that neither she nor any city council member proof read the final draft.

"No one from the city or council proof read the proposed charter, we didn't want to have that obligation and responsibility," Mrs. Miller said. She said she called Charter Commission attorney Michael Braboy and turned the document over to him to proof read.

Braboy agreed that Mrs. Miller turned the proposed charter over to him, but that he only had two hours to scrutinize the final wording of the proposed charter before it was printed.

"I don't know how long Mrs. Miller had it in her possession before she called me, but I was in court the morning she called my office," Braboy said. "She said that I had until 3 p.m. that same day to proof read the proposed charter and return it to her office."

"By the time I got back to my office from court, it was 1 p.m. and I only had two hours to proof read it. There was no way I could proof read the entire charter in that length of time, so I read what I could and turned it back to the city clerk's office at 3 p.m."

"Mrs. Miller wasn't in the office at the time, so I gave it to the deputy clerk. I don't want to blame anybody, all I know is that I had too little time to proof read the entire charter."

Braboy said he has two priorities in front of him now. Since the Sept. 11 date is presumably out, he will follow the Charter Commission's wishes to seek a vote on the proposed charter on Nov. 6. He will officially request the Nov. 6 date from the Wayne County Election Scheduling Commission.

Councilman Ernest Hendricks responded to remarks made by Edward Bivens in last week's Ledger-Star story in which the latter blamed city council for "delaying tactics" in voting on the proposed charter.

"It simply is not the truth that city council used delaying tactics against us," said Hendricks, who sat on the Charter Commission until June 4 of this year when he was appointed to fill a council vacancy.

"Mr. Bivens constantly talked issues to death at every meeting during the 2½ years I sat on the commission."

Hendricks charged that Bivens and former commissioner Kay Beard, who is now county commissioner, argued for 45 minutes at some meetings over approving the minutes of the previous meeting. "They would argue over commas and periods and a word or two that was not even germane to the meaning of the statement," Hendricks said.

"So, it was ones like Kay Beard and Ed Bivens that really had a large part in holding up the finishing of this proposed charter. And especially Bivens. I don't know why, but it seemed that he had some purpose in not wrapping up the document to be voted on," Hendricks said.

"If we would have gotten down to business, the Charter Commission could have had the proposed charter completed and ready to vote on in the fall of 1977, or in the fall of 1978 at the latest."

"It just irritates me very much when people employ certain tactics and then try to put the blame on someone else. It just isn't right," fumed the irate Hendricks, who said he was plainly disturbed and upset by Bivens' remarks.

Insurance classifications

Higher car insurance costs may well be in store for young families, young unmarried women, senior citizens, and many rural and suburban Michigan drivers if the House and Senate decide to back recommendations to eliminate, in the future, age, sex, marital status and territorial rating as auto insurance rating criterias.

But we feel that to ignore statistics by eliminating or restricting age, sex, marital status and territories as rating variables would be to force low risk drivers to pay more in order to subsidize the losses of high risk drivers.

If companies were forced to charge the same rate for high risk young men and low risk young women, the young women would be paying more their share and the young men's premiums would be insufficient to pay for the losses they generate.

While it is difficult to predict specifically what will happen in Michigan, the result of this social engineering can be seen in Massachusetts. Neither policyholders nor the public, in general is satisfied. As a result of limitations on the use of territorial classifications in automobile rating it is estimated that in excess of 50 percent of Boston's driving population has been placed in the residual market facility.

Elimination of the use of classification criteria will arbitrarily reduce costs in some areas contrary to economic reality. The result could be greater availability problems for the driving public in some urban areas.

Tampering with the use of age, sex, marital status and territories in classification systems will impose unfair costs on many motorists and could dry up the availability of insurance for those groups of drivers now viewed as 'higher risks'.

We feel the Legislature should take this concept back to the drawing boards for further study.

In their rush to provide 'social justice', they have approached an insurance disaster.

Television

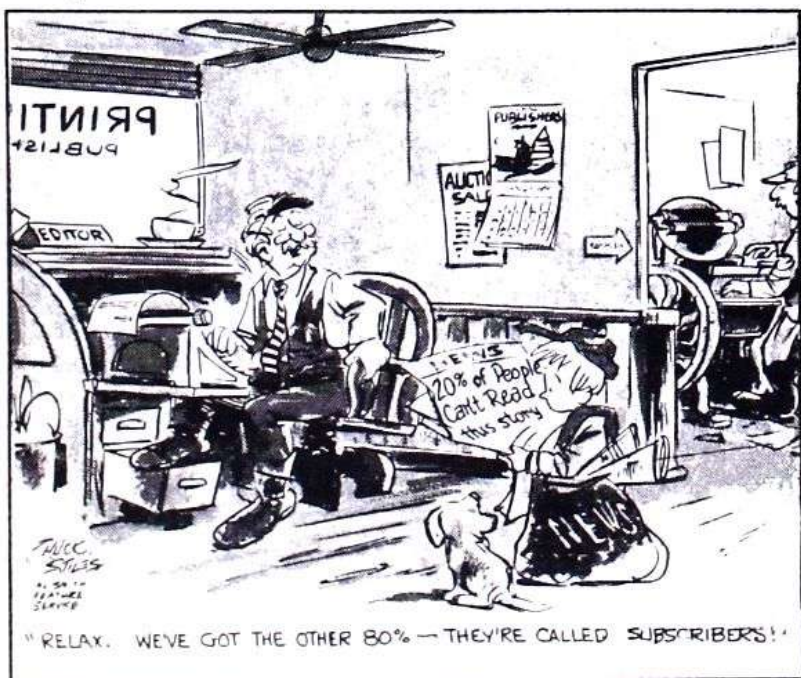

The best hope of breaking the near-monopoly of three commercial television networks may be the superstation. A TV superstation sells its programs, via satellite, to cable TV systems over a wide area. That's where its income comes from, not from the networks.

There are now several superstations — WTCG in Atlanta, KTVU in Oakland, WGN in Chicago, WPIX in New York and WCVB in Boston. Some haven't yet expanded to the degree WTCG has but, if legal arrangements can be made, most of them probably will.

WTCG of Atlanta may soon begin to produce its own evening news program, which would be a blessing for America and a safeguard for the nation. So long as three New York-based networks compile and control content of the three evening news shows a hundred million Americans sometimes see, they have an ominous power over U.S. public opinion. In short, they can make it what they want it to be — to a surprising degree.

There's no such danger in the news print field, for there are so many different newspapers. The "triopoly" of the networks, however, limits VHF programs to those which attract the greatest possible number of morons and ignorant, impressionable people (for sales purposes) and usually bars programs of a higher intellectual appeal which might, for example, attract only a few million educated or cultured viewers. This kind of system, catering to the base element, can never substantially uplift the national standard of culture and education.

Thus the hope of thinking Americans is that the number, success and broad range of programming of the superstations will continue to grow; the policy of the F.C.C. and the Carter Administration should be to see that this is the case.

Legislation before the recess

By EDUARDE E. MAHALAK
State Representative
38th District

A number of bills have moved through the Legislature and been signed into law. Some of the most recent cover such areas as school zone speed limits, truck widths and births and marriages.

One of them gives local authorities the power to establish speed limits on state trunkline highways that pass through school zones.

The state maximum speed limit for school zones before, during and after school is 25 miles an hour, although local governments could increase that speed limit if they wished.

However, before the new law, neither the state maximum nor locally-set speed limits applied to state trunkline highways within school zones. Those speed limits were set instead by representatives of state and local police, the school district, the county road commission and/or the Department of Transportation, meeting as a board. This brought complaints that that type of board was not always responsive to the desires of local parents and residents.

The new law changes this, giving local governments authority to also set speed limits on the major state highways within school zones.

While formerly the local government could increase the state 25-mile-an-hour speed limit, the new law also gives it authority to set a lower speed limit. However, this could be done only after conferring with the State Department of Transportation, the county road commission and local school board.

Another newly-signed law will make regulations on trucks with over-wide loads more flexible and clear.

State law limits the truck widths to 96 inches, but truckers can apply for special permits for loads which exceed that width. However, the old statute on special over-width permits is somewhat inflexible, and is not clear on the length of time the permits are considered valid and whether local road authorities can issue such permits on an annual basis.

There is also a problem for manufacturing firms which truck products and components between Michigan and Canada, since Canada permits a width of as much as 102 inches.

The new law will allow the Department of Transportation, county road commissions and local authorities to designate highways under their jurisdiction on which trucks and loads could exceed the maximum 96-inch width, as long as they are not more than 102 inches wide.

The law's provisions would not, however, restrict the issuance of special permits for over-wide or overweight vehicles. This would allow regularly used overwidth vehicles to obtain a yearly permit for this usage, rather than having to secure such a permit each time such transportation was required.

The new law takes effect on August 1.

One of the new laws prohibits any reference on a birth certificate or public birth record of the legitimacy or illegitimacy of the child.

While there was already law which prohibited an explicit reference to illegitimate birth on public records, it did not apply to birth certificates and records.

The new law will help to protect children from the stigma of birth out-of-wedlock. The term "illegitimate" has negative connotations and a person can be embarrassed or even discriminated against when the term is found on commonly used official documents or records, such as birth certificates.

The birth records would still contain the essential information required under current law.

Chamber Chatter

Enlightened but ironic times

By RICHARD L. LESHNER
President, Chamber of Commerce of the United States

We live in ironic times. In this enlightened age, we are generally more educated and better equipped to achieve, create, improve and excel than ever before. And yet, we must also contend with a government absolutely determined to be our nanny — one that is convinced we have neither the right nor the ability to fend for ourselves. The result is frustration, a kind of collective gnashing of teeth and a tilting away from individual opportunity and economic growth.

I see these contradictions whenever I travel. Outside Washington, people are obviously very concerned about problems like inflation and energy, but they still believe in their own potential; they know they can produce needed solutions if only government would get out of the way and stop taxing and spending so much of their money. Not so in Washington, where bureaucrats distrust anyone producing anything without their permission. Here the quest is always for more power.

People go to the polls believing they are electing representatives to a Congress that writes the laws of the land. It isn't so. Regulatory agencies currently spew out about 18 regulations with the force of law for every one law enacted by Congress. These little nuggets of wisdom cost every working American substantially more than $1,000 a year. And the beauty of it all is — at least from the bureaucrats' point of view — that we rarely even know, it's happening.

How many Americans, for example, will have the time to read or scan the 75,000 pages of the Federal Register each year to learn which of the 7,000 new federal regulations personally affects them? How many of us even realized that bureaucrats had been busy, busy writing regulations for mousetraps? They were. The specifications weigh 3.3 pounds, cover 700 pages and total about 20,000 words. That's why we pay more for a mousetrap than we should. But we shouldn't get upset, for the regulators could care less what we think. Unlike our representatives, they are neither elected by us, nor responsible to us; in effect, they are practically untouchable.

Some of the worst examples of this bureaucratic overkill come from the Federal Trade Commission. Perhaps the most aggressive agency in Washington, the Commission's influence extends to virtually every activity in our economy, from the manufacture of hearing aids to mobile homes. One of its goals — to root out deception from the marketplace — is both legitimate and necessary. But the FTC seems to hunger for a more sweeping mandate to regulate our entire economy, and it has some 600 lawyers and 80 economists sitting around deciding what they believe is unfair in life. These people have a license to go hunting behind every bush and every door, but they are under no compulsion to consider the impact of their regulations. The result is a host of ill-conceived rulings that translate into millions of dollars in litigation fees being passed on to consumers in the form of higher product costs.

One of the FTC's latest quests is to move ahead with proposals that could ban, or sharply limit, child-oriented television commercials. As usual, the FTC has presented no cost-impact study. One economist who did, estimated that at a minimum, the proposals could cost 284,000 jobs and lead to a loss of more than $2 billion in tax revenues. There is an alternative. Parents can exercise their responsibility by occasionally turning off the television and using that dirty two-letter word: No.

Nor does the FTC's strict concept of fairness in the marketplace extend to its own dealings. I find it appalling that its staff members have systematically attacked the credibility of witnesses opposing an FTC proposal. Indeed, many of these proceedings are all but rigged, because they are controlled by: One staff member who proposed the rule; a colleague who serves as "impartial" hearing officer, and still another colleague who decides which "public interest" group will be given taxpayers' money to "objectively" support the proposed rule.

I believe it's time to require cost-impact studies and also permit Congress to veto unwelcome regulations before they're enforced. The Administration is fond of populist rhetoric, yet it opposes the Congressional veto since it would interfere with the power of the Executive Branch. But Congress is closest to the grassroots and more than 200 members of the House already support the idea.

And why not? Right now regulatory agencies are out of control. A Congressional veto could bring the process into the open by insisting that bureaucrats assume the same responsibilities as other Americans ... rather than remain the untouchables they now are.

Inflation threatens our way of life

By Edwin Feulner

If inflation continues at its present pace, the United States could become like pre-World War II Germany, where housewives had to lug suitcases full of money to the market each week to pay for their groceries.

Inconceivable? Don't bet on it.

According to statistics published recently in a major midwestern newspaper, the average worker who earned $10,500 in 1977 would be earning $656,000 a year in 2050 if wages rise at a modest 5.75 percent per year between now and then.

Assuming prices rise an even more modest four percent per year, not the present ten percent, a one-pound loaf of bread will cost $37.50, a house costing $55,000 today will cost $3.4 million, and a cross-town phone call will cost something like $9.00.

Speaking of prices, eagle-eyed hordes of trade unionists, whose passion for scapegoating Big Business is only exceeded by their passion for record-setting wage increases, are on the prowl across the country monitoring consumer prices.

According to veteran labor reporter Victor Riesel, whose charming wife Evelyn and Heritage's own Herb Berkowitz share old-country Roumanian recipes with one-another, old warlord George Meany has directed Leo Perlis, head of the AFL-CIO Community Community Services Department, to monitor

America's supermarket, drugstore, department and discount store prices — just in case someone should exceed Jimmy Carter's seven percent solution. (Only the Teamsters and other specially blessed interests are permitted to exceed the guidelines.)

Riesel warns of "mass rallies, store demonstrations, swift-swooping photographers ... city and state-wide coalitions of masses of men and women ... the whole pressure group spectrum in hundreds of cities."

The idea, of course, is to pressure storekeepers — who are no more responsible for inflation than the next fellow — to bite the bullet until it explodes.

The real cause of inflation, of course, is complex. Rising prices and demands for keep-up wage increases are only symptoms of inflation, not its primary causes.

The true cause is buried deep in Washington in the complex of federal laws and rules which permit the federal government to pay its bad debts with bogus money and forces private industry to divert so many resources to pleasing the bureaucrats that productivity suffers and dies.

The first cause is easiest to understand. Whenever the federal government operates in the red — in other words, when we have deficit spending — the government printing presses are cranked into operation to cover the debt. The value of each dollar, of course, decreases proportionately — and you have "inflation."

The second cause is more complex and less visible. Government quality-of-life regulations, as well intended as they are, force industry to divert billions of dollars from research and development, plant construction and modernization, and from other pursuits that would help give us more bang for each buck. (No, productivity does not refer to more perspiration per hour of labor from America's workers.)

The results are obvious — having to pay more for raw materials and for worker salaries, industry must simply pass on these increases to consumers because the only way to offset them would have been by increasing productivity. But the government has taken care of that.

Again, you have inflation.

If a $37 loaf of bread sounds as scary to George Meany as it does to us, we invite him and his AFL-CIO lobbyists to join the rest of America in calling for a sane economic program that will permit the government to spend no more than it takes in and will allow U.S. industry to go about the business of doing business.

Ask Carol Premo

By CAROL PREMO, C.S.W.

Carol Premo, a Certified Social Worker in private practice in Belleville, Mich., will be presenting weekly answers to problems which may have been the source of either joy or pain for some of our readers.

You are invited to ask Carol about a problem or discuss a solution by mailing your letter to: Carol Premo, Associated Newspapers, 47818 W. Huron River Drive, Belleville, Mich. 48111.

Dear Carol,
I have a question about telephone manners. When I answer the telephone I say "Good morning, --- residence." The caller then asks for the individual they called, then I ask them to identify themselves. So far, all is very straightforward and easy. The question is whether it is appropriate to hang up when the caller says his name is Santa Claus.

Annoyed by Foolish Games

Dear Annoyed,
Since technically the telephone is an instrument of communication and not a play toy, it would be correct etiquette for you to hang up. You are not being accorded the same respect that you are extending. However, if the caller is a friend or acquaintance who simply means to communicate a jolly mood rather than disrespect, be aware that they might feel baffled, hurt or angered by your abruptness. You might consider asking who they are a second time in a sterner tone of voice that conveys that you want to be treated more seriously. Who knows — you might find out that you would have hung up on the real Santa Claus!

Dear Carol,
I am so upset I can barely sit still to write this letter. (I am printing on wrapping paper so I cannot be traced). I have had, I thought, until today, a happy marriage, kids, etc. I suppose I had better explain. Last week I had a complete physical and blood test. When I returned for the results today — the doctor said I had syphilis.
I was stunned, shocked, horrified — Me? How could I have a dirty disease? Then the doctor's explanations began to filter through — no, it was not a result of unsanitary toilet facilities, etc. There was only one way to get it. So his "casual" conclusion was I either got it from my spouse or lover. I felt humiliated and dirty. Then to my further horror the doctor told me my name and address would be given to the county health department. I couldn't believe it. Some high and mighty bureaucrat would know I was unclean. He also said my husband would have to come in for a blood test.
I am terribly hurt and confused. I have been faithful and honest. The blood test would then indicate my husband has had an affair (affairs?).
Where do I start to get my life cleaned up.

Feels Dirty

Dear Feels Dirty,
It is understandable that you feel upset after such a surprise. Your letter is not in danger of being traced, since all letters to this column are confidential.
Knowing some facts about the disease might ease your feelings of being dirty and confused. Syphilis is a venereal disease passed from person to person via direct contact — usually intercourse. People do not catch VD from toilet seats, dishes, door knobs, etc., although many myths might cause you to think that. Since VD germs cannot live outside the body, personal cleanliness will not prevent infection.
You state that you felt "humiliated and dirty" after the doctor gave you his "casual" conclusion. While the doctor's attitude may have indeed been crass, his casual tone might also reflect that your case is not an unusual one.
VD is found in all areas, among all classes and ages, and has reached epidemic proportions in America. About half a million Americans now have syphilis, and syphilis and gonorrhea together strike one American every 14 seconds. Your doctor reported your name to the health department not to humiliate you, but because he is required by law to do so in order to help fight this national epidemic.
Syphilis can be cured, but if it is not treated quickly it can damage tissues that can't be repaired. Blindness, insanity, paralysis, heart disease and even death can ensue. It is crucial for you to talk with your husband about that immediately.
You may be afraid to do so, fearing that your "happy-marriage" has been ruined. This situation does not necessarily indicate that. It does indicate that there is a problem in your relationship which you need to communicate about. Marriage counseling might help you do that constructively. To locate a marriage counselor call the Michigan Association of Marriage Counselors at 644 2984.

Ghost stories

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

Ghost stories are always fun to listen to. Especially when one has built a huge bonfire on the beach, a full moon is shining down on the gently lapping waves, toasted marshmallows taste a lot like fish, and the front of you is toasty hot while the sun-burned back shivers when struck by the cool, northern breeze.
That is when a ghost story is exactly what one needs.
In our group was a man who had just recently joined the summer crowd. He was big, muscular and handsome and his grandchildren and their little friends crawled over him, hugging and loving and laughing.
"I really don't believe in this-kind of stuff," his voice was deep and resonant, "but something happened to me one time you might like to hear."
Our friend was just a little boy when his grandfather died. He had loved his grandfather with all of the love a seven year old can muster, and when he had lost him his days seemed long and full of tears, for there was now no one to take him by the hand and walk to the top of the hill where one could see all of the land which belonged to the family.
There was no one to help him up on the pony and walk beside him holding him on the pony's back while the small animal followed the fences of the back field.
The little boy would sit for hours in the old wicker rocking chair on the porch in which his grandfather had spent many hours, rocking and reminiscing about the old days, and sometimes he imagined that he was sitting on his grandfather's lap, and the chair would slowly rock.
He refused to let anyone put him on the back of the pony, and he refused to go to the top of the hill.
One night found him hot and restless, the fever slowly burning the life from him. His mother had fallen asleep in the chair by his bed, and the little boy threw the covers from his body and lay whimpering with discomfort.
It was then that his eyes were drawn to the window. The sheer curtains were softly blowing inward, although there seemed to be no breeze. As he watched a beam of light flashed through the window and the floor immediately before it was bathed in a rosy glow. As the boy watched he saw his grandfather in the center of the glowing light. He was smiling and reaching his arms out to the boy.
"If you want to come," he said, "I will take you with me, but I would prefer that you stay here to take care of things for me. The pony needs to be ridden, for no critter can live without love. The hills need to be climbed, for it is sad without the sound of running footsteps, and the land to be seen from the top of the hill needs that loving watch."
The boy wanted to go. He wanted to take his grandfather's hand and walk through that glow and be with his grandfather forever, but he could feel the wisdom of the grandfather's words.
At that moment his sleeping mother's fingers tightened on his arm, causing him to look at her, to see the sorrow on her face, the worry resting on her heart. When he looked again at the window his grandfather was gone. He seemed to have known that the little boy had made his commitment.
A few weeks later, strong and well, he rode his pony, and he walked to the top of the hill. And as he looked out over the land a bird landed on his shoulder, and in its chirp he heard his grandfather's voice.

Back-to-school shopping

By SHERRY WAINES

August and new school clothes walk hand in hand. The stores have been filled to the ceiling with the new fall clothes for weeks but the mood to purchase does not hit me until August. This month my daughter and I will spend many an hour roaming shopping centers looking for new school clothes. We both love this time of year.

New school clothes bring back a lot of fond memories from childhood. Every August my mother and her sister, my Aunt Pearl would get together and plan a whole day of shopping just for school clothes. They would go off together early in the morning to be downtown Detroit when the stores first opened. At home my sisters and I would impatiently await their return.

Just when we were ready to give up hope of them ever returning, the car would pull into the driveway. All five of us kids would run out of the house to witness the opening of the car trunk. Inside that trunk were the biggest bags and boxes that I have ever seen in my life. Each bag or box was wrapped four or five times with thin string. A small wooden handle was attached to the string for easy carrying.

To this day I am thrilled by the sight of a big box tied with string and a little wooden handle on top.

When all the boxes and bags were inside the house lying on the living room floor we cut the strings, ripped open the packages and then gently folded back the tissue paper to reveal the contents inside.

The sight of dozens of brand new white underwear, t-shirts, socks and slippers was absolutely breath taking. The other bags and boxes contained dresses in various sizes and colors. We were all thrilled over our mother's selections and somehow everything seemed to fit everyone just right.

I was sure that my mother has bought the store out lock stock and barrel. Father probably thought the same thing.

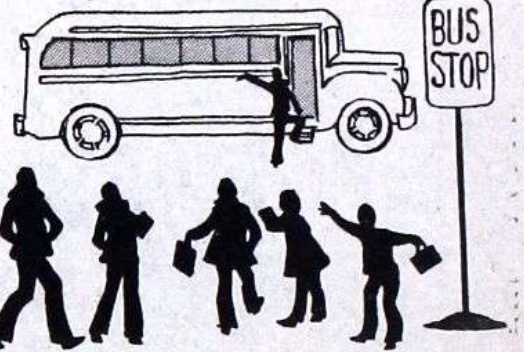

The night before the first day of school we all eagerly bathed and washed our hair. Then my mother would set our hair in bobby pins. The next morning we would all rise early to garb ourselves in new clothes from head to toe. After breakfast which we were to excited to eat, Mom would gather us all together outside to take a picture.

When shopping for school clothes for my daughter, we do some things differently. She comes with me so we can decide on outfits together. I have her try everything on first to make sure it fits. It takes me weeks to buy outfits for one child when it only took one day for my mother to buy clothes for five.

Purchasing clothes throughout the school year would be more practical than buying them all at once but childhood memories will not allow me to be practical. The desire to set her hair in bobby pins is almost overpowering even though that type of hair style is no longer in fashion. Pictures of her first days of school from nursery school on up dot our photo albums.

Her reaction to everything that has to do with the purchasing of new school clothes is much the same as mine was and still is. Which to me makes the cost of having to purchase new school clothes look like a real bargain.

Anderson tourney lures 16 teams

Westlanders favored to win 3rd annual softball meet

Defeated only once in 17 games this season, recently crowned Westland Parks and Recreation Major Division champs, Studio Lounge, is favored to walk away with the third annual Patrolman Lenny Anderson Memorial Softball Tournament Title.

"I'd definitely have to go with them," said Larry Quartuccio, tourney director. "They look like they are the class of the tournament."

Studio will be challenged by 15 other teams who are scheduled to see action beginning Aug. 10. The competition will last three days and winds down with the finals on Aug. 12. All games will be played on the Anderson Memorial Softball Diamond, located at Howe and Annapolis rds.

Patrolman Anderson was gunned down on April 10, 1974 while responding to a family quarrel call. He died from gunshot wounds on May 25 of that year.

Patrolman Anderson became the first Wayne police officer to die in the line of duty.

"All the proceeds from this tournament will be donated to the purchasing of equipment for the field that is named for Patrolman Anderson," Quartuccio pointed out. "Lenny was well known. He was an outstanding athlete at Westland John Glenn, and he was a man whom we were all proud of."

The tournament is being co-sponsored by the Wayne Department of Parks and Recreation and the Hof-Brau Lounge which has one of the teams in the tournament. Other entries include: Hangar Lounge (Romulus), Here &

Tom secluded, 'The Spark' fizzles

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Sports Writer

Tom Mooradian, the venerable sports editor who usually fills this space, is on a well-deserved two-week vacation.

At this very moment he's in cloistered seclusion, pounding away on his trusty typewriter trying to put the finishing touches on his "best-selling" novel. His phone is no doubt off the hook and he's retired to his dungeon so he won't be disturbed.

After all, with a big name publisher waiting for the first draft of his first few chapters, Tom's frantically typing his fingers to the bone to finish polishing them.

When I used the word "venerable" to describe Tom, it was with good reason. First of all, I like to think he's the best local sports editor, and the most dedicated to getting kids' names in the newspaper, that I've ever seen. But I thought I would look up the meaning of the word "venerable", just to be on the safe side — even though I knew it has something to do with age. (And Tom has a lot of that).

The word has five meanings in my dictionary. The first meaning: "Worthy of veneration or reverence, as on account of high character of office." (That's not exactly what I had in mind!)

The second meaning is more applicable. It states: "Commanding respect by reason of age and dignity of appearance." Now that's more like it!

I don't know just how old Mooradian is, but he's been manning these sports pages for the past century at least. I don't know whether it's true or not, but someone said Methuselah broke in as a cub reporter under him.

When Tom goes down into his subterranean hide-away to finish his novel, I just hope they don't think he's a relative of King Tut and place him in some tomb.

All kidding aside, have a good rest, Tom, you deserve it! You're really a nice guy.

Speaking of nice guys, I really didn't know how nice a guy Sparky Anderson, new skipper of the Detroit Tigers, was until I read a story about him by Jim Hawkins in Sunday's Detroit Free Press.

Anderson tells us just how nice he is. Hawkins quotes Anderson as saying: "I always felt, even as a young kid, that I was the greatest thing God ever made. And I still do."

Now I have to take for granted that Sparky actually said what Hawkins quoted him as saying. But I still can't believe it. Well, maybe I can, after all.

After hearing the white-topped manager spout off in the few weeks he's been here, I guess it shouldn't surprise me. But it does. How can anyone say something like that about themselves?

Of course, I should have gotten a clue when I read those silly trivia posters of the Tigers on the back page of the Free Press. When asked who was the person he most admired, Anderson said: "Me." He also said he was very fond of Richard Nixon — the resigned president, with the 18 minutes of erased tape.

Ron LeFlore and Lou Whitaker said the same thing in the trivia posters. The person they said they admired the most is themselves. People wrapped up in themselves make a pretty small package.

And those on an ego trip are really a big "turn-off." I don't know about you, but I don't care if I hear another word from "Sparky", who has publicly said he can "out-talk" anybody in the word-games people play.

On the wall in front of me is an autographed picture of Sparky Anderson that was sent to Tom Mooradian. It says: "From The Spark — to the Sports Meridian." Well, I just have a few comments of my own.

I think "The Spark" has just short-circuited — and maybe Sparky can get Nixon to "rub-out" the line where he says: "I always felt, even as a young kid, that I was the greatest thing God ever made. And I still do."

Failing to do that, I'm going to search until I find Tom Mooradian's subterranean hideout and bury Sparky Anderson's smiling puss with him.

They have good reasons to smile

When it comes to golf — and, in most sports for that matter, you can tell the winners from the losers from their smiles. And Michael Brown (from left), Thomas Larson and Perry Yeager who competed in the 20th annual City Championship Tournament held recently at Dun Rovin flash smiles after they proved to be the best in Wayne's Second Flight. More than 100 amateur golfers competed in the summer classic which pitted golfers from Wayne, Westland, Garden City, Inkster and Canton Township in a tournament that determines the city titles for each community and the make-up of 5-men teams that compete in the state MPRA finals.

Studio clinches Major title

Though they had the championship in their mitts before the final week, Studio Lounge became the official Westland Men's Major Softball League champion last week, thanks to a pair of victories.

Studio buried fourth-place Joe Thomas, 16-8, and eked out a 19-13 victory over Hide-Away to wrap up the regular season league competition with an impressive 17-1 won-lost record.

Hideaway and Jamies wound up in a "dead heat" for runner-up honors. Both had identical 14-4 records.

It was the third consecutive year that Studio managed to successfully defend its title.

Against Hide-Away, though, the champs were forced to fight uphill all the way, and a 11-run fifth inning rally finally made the difference. Bill Pierce drilled a pair of over-the-fence homers and drove in four runs which helped in pitcher Steve Patterson's demise. Patterson also had problems with former All-Area baseball and cage John Glenn star, Jim Kholmman, who laced three singles and also hammered a roundtripper. Greg Kuhn checked in with three singles for the winners.

In the meantime, winning pitcher Choppie Reynolds gave up his share of hits. He was tagged for 16, including a pair of out-of-the-park homers to Norm Beasley who counted four runs batted in. John Lee slammed a homer and doubled, while John Marmul bagged three singles.

Joe Thomas brought the regular-season curtains down with a lopsided 18-3 victory over Dearborn Real Estate as winning pitcher Joe Cooley gave up 10 hits. Of those 10, Keith Drake, Steve Fedulchuk and Larry Michalik each had two.

Loser Bob Fullerton's met his "Waterloo" in the form of Dean Minton's potent bat. Minton had a (Continued on 2nd Sports)

Pittman's captures Westland crown

Rick Pittman's pitching and hitting lifted Wayne to the inaugural Westland Parks & Recreation's

Men's Invitational Softball Tournament championship last week.

Pittman strung together four victories, then won a narrow 9-8 decision over Johnny's '76 of Westland to clinch the title.

The match-up in the championship was close all the way. Both teams exchanged three runs in the second inning, then Pittman's took a 5-4 lead after three innings.

However, the Westlanders struck for three runs in the bottom of the fifth to go ahead 7-5. The champs eventually put the winning runs on the board in the sixth, thanks to a three-run surge. In the seventh, (Continued on 3rd Sports)

Bev's Girls fall, 8-7

Champs survive close call

Almost, the cliché goes, only counts in horseshoes.

So, Bev's Girls, who came within a pair of runs of tainting undefeated Studio Lounge's women's softball record, have to be satisfied that they came close to upsetting the champs, if that is any consolation.

Erupting for five runs in the top of the seventh to tie the game at 7-all, Bev's lost an 8-7 decision when Studio Lounge broke the deadlock in the last of that inning.

Winning pitcher Sharon Turflinger helped her cause with three hits that produced two runs batted in and her sister, Karen, had a pair of doubles in three hits. Jean Sisson broke up the game when she singled home the winning run. She had three hits off of loser Bev Liverance.

Miss Liverance gave up 20 hits in all. Edwina Stromski, Rebecca Denewith and Collen Dittmar each had two hits for the losers who trailed 5-0 going into the top of the sixth, then put two runs on the board in that inning and five more in the seventh.

Studio jumped out in front 2-0 in the first inning and picked up three more in the third.

Studio ended the regular season with a perfect 12-0 won-lost record. Miss Sisson had two other hits — both singles — off of loser Bev Liverance who gave up a total of 20 hits to the champs. Ms. Turflinger helped her cause with three singles that produced two RBIs. She also scored three times. Karen Turflinger slammed a pair of doubles and a single for three hits.

Meanwhile, Colleen Dittmar,

Rebecca Denewith and Edwina Stromski checked in with two hits apiece.

Rocco's made it seven out of 12 with a come-from-behind 8-6 victory over Jamies. Down 6-3 in the last of the seventh, Rocco pounded out five hits and scored five times to win it. Pitcher Cindy Mobely got credit for the victory as she served up 15 hits to the losers who received three hits each from Darlene Pierson, Judy Griwicki and Sherry Salono.

Terri Knight and Barb Wray each hammered homers off of losing hurler Tammy Mauno who also gave up a pair of doubles to Barb Roth.

J & D Auto jumped on losing pitcher Lynn Dupek for five runs in the fourth, added six more in the fifth en route to an one-sided 18-3 (Continued on 2nd Sports)

Rheem's avenges lone loss

Revenge is sweet, the sophists will argue.

And Rheem's, the Van Buren Township men's softball league leader, knows just how that goes.

In its 10 previous outings, Rheem's had lost but once — a thriller to Draw-Tite, and when the two met for the second time this year the league frontrunners didn't miss their chance to avenge that loss.

Scoring five times in the second inning, Rheem's broke open a close contest and went on to humble their arch-rivals, 13-5.

Draw Tite, though, got their share (15) of hits off of winning pitcher Mark Fromer who had his problems with John Orthar. Orthar stroked three singles and scored three runs, while teammates Mike Beaver, Doug Guzal and Dale Zilka each turned in with a pair of hits.

Pat Anguilm and Paul Lauth paced the winner's assault on losing pitcher Tom Alvie who gave up four and three hits respectively to the Rheem sluggers. Bill Houle and Terry Caves each had two hits, and all four batters knocked in two runs apiece.

Meanwhile, Rheem's needed a fifth inning rally to put down a stubborn Bigs and Wags team, 9-8. Rheem's jumped out in front 2-0 in the first inning, but the losers came up with four runs in the third inning and increased their lead to 7-3 in the fourth before Rheem's got down to business and played ball. They struck for six runs in the fifth and turned the tide in their favor.

Ageless golf King

Golfing seems to bring the best out of "ageless" Robert King who for the past 20 years has competed in the annual City Championships sponsored by the Associated Newspapers and five area parks and recreation department. The 70-year-old and some King, (second from right) showed the younger generation a thing or two at Dun Rovin recently as he walked off the course with medalist honors for the Inkster First Flight. Presenting the first place trophy to King is David Runyan, Inkster Parks and Recreation Department representative. Also pictured are Michael Bailey who placed three-strokes (177) behind the flight winner and John Russell (at left) who picked up his first ever trophy in the tournament.

Sweep Series with Yanks

Reds win 'World Series'

The Reds are the toughest team in Wayne's Class F baseball league. And they proved that statement last week by sweeping four games, including two by identical scores of 11-6 over the Yankees, to capture the coveted World Series.

Pat Sheposh and Brian Mac combined on a 9-hitter. They were the losers in the crucial second game, while winner Dean Ferris was also tagged for nine-hits, struck out six and allowed three to reach base on balls.

Sheposh started for the Yanks but got into first inning trouble after his teammates staked him to a three run lead. The Reds came right back in that inning and got two of those runs back, tied it up at 3-all in the second, added two more in the third and stashed away the victory with a five-run surge in the fourth.

Ronnie White was rough on winner Ferris who served up three of his nine hits to the Yank slugger. White also knocked in three runs. Randy Newman collected two hits for the losers.

Meanwhile, Steve Jaskowski's bat reeked havoc on the losers as he pounded out a homer and double and chased home three runs. Steve Wells helped the champs' cause with a pair of singles and an RBI.

In the first game of the Series, both teams exchanged a run in the second inning, and both put three on the scoreboard in the third, but the Reds countered with three unanswered tallies in the fourth and that about made the difference.

Jaskowski again homered and Wells also blasted a roundtripper while Larry Climie and Ferris had four and two hits respectively.

Jaskowski worked the first two innings, gave up three hits, one run and fanned four while Jim Bledsoe labored five innings on the mound.

Wells and Jaskowski belted back-to-back homers which spelled disaster for the Yanks who tried two pitchers — White and Mac in hopes of silencing the Reds' power machine.

Sheposh again came through for the Yanks as he lashed out a double and a pair of singles. White homered for one of the Yanks' 12 hits.

fantastic day at the plate as he belted three homers — all landing over the fence. He singlehandedly accounted for 6 RBIs. Mark Mays sliced a pair of balls over the fence and singled for four runs batted in. Bob Thaxton had three hits for the winners.

Studio leaped on Joe Thomas for eight runs in the first two innings and then went on to collect 23 hits and win 16-8 in the season curtain drawer.

Winning hurler Dennis Rogowski helped his cause with two homers and a triple. He finished up with six runs batted in. Pat Kelley chipped in a homer and two singles, while Jerry Jervella had three hits.

Rogowski gave up 10 hits, three of those were singles by Tim Kennedy. Cooley, the losing pitcher, had two RBIs, produced on two hits.

Allen Park stuns Wayne All-Stars

Even their best was just not enough to stop Allen Park.

Wayne's All-Stars took on a strong Class E contingent from the downriver community and dropped a thrilling 3-1 decision in eight innings.

Rooney Hall got the call on the mound against the Parkers who broke a scoreless deadlock in the top of the fourth to grab the lead. Though both teams scored one-run each in the fifth, and Wayne later tied it up in the sixth, the Parkers went on to snap the deadlock in the eighth inning.

Hall scattered three hits — one each to Chris Grives, Chris Seychle and a double to Mike Lauria. His teammates collected a total of five, but the local team just couldn't come up with the key hit.

Cernaic Post was the winner, striking out 10 batters while walking two. He was tagged for five hits — all singles — one each by Dean Saranas, Mike LeBlanc, Alan Spencer, Kevin Rodriguez and Shaun Boyer.

In the annual Grapefruit All-Star Game, the Al Kaline line-up erupted for five runs in the top of the eighth to turn back the Ty Cobbers 11-6. John Blazer knocked in three runs on a pair of doubles and a single for the winners who used Tim Potter, Andy Drahier, Jeff Guest and Brian Smith on the mound.

The Ty Cobbers went with Scott Pennington, Bill Wicker, Todd Lowell and Trent Kessel.

The American League All-Stars came up with two runs in the top of the eighth but fell short 10-9 against their National League counterpart.

John Novick led the winners as he collected three hits, including a double.

Steve Jaskowski put out the American League rally when he stepped to the mound in the seventh and struck out four batters.

Pat Sheposh drilled three hits and drove home three runs for the American Leaguers who used David Day, Dan Matauch, Brian Mac, Brian Brozowski and Sheposh on the mound.

The National League's pitching rotation including Phil Coleman, Wayne Cheraik, Don Vojfhotsky, Jim Bledsoe and Jaskowski.

Rheem's

Lauth, who is batting a hefty .710, knocked in three runs and scored three times after getting aboard on three singles. Pat Anguilm swatted a pair of singles and a triple to boost his batting average to .667 while Jim Anguilm and Mark Fromer each had two singles.

Tom O'Brien and Dave Dapsi split four hits off of winner Fromer who was tagged for 10 safeties.

In the only other game, Rheem's broke loose for eight runs in the first and eight more in the fourth to crush Horst 17-2 behind the home run power provided by Rick Elgas, Mike Anguilm and Bill Houle.

victory over winless and last place Players Lounge. Lisa Pocaro drilled two homers and a single which accounted for six runs batted in for the winners. Teammates Shelly Arner and Mary Oaks each had three hits, with one double apiece.

Miss Arner was the winner. She scattered nine hits, three going to Kathy Gillette who also scored three times. Connie Coon had two singles and Barb Wilcox knocked out a triple and a single.

In an abbreviated game, cut short because of the time rule, the County Mounties won a 20-15 slugfest over the Unlimited in their season's finale. Eight runs in the fourth put the Mounties over the top and gave them their sixth win in 12 trips to the diamond.

Pat Coleman, who chased home three runs, had an excellent day at the plate off of losing hurler Barb MacRoberts. Miss Coleman sliced three singles and a double. Mate Alice Michno homered, latched on to a pair of doubles and a single. Joyce Eagling also homered and singled off of MacRoberts.

Jean Hamilton chalked up the win, pitching a 11-hitter, three of those hits went to Shelly Phillips who homered, had two singles and knocked in four runs. Sue Ollis and Debbie Kollias each had two hits in their final appearances at the plate during the regular season.

Bulls are city champs

They may have been the object of a lot of jokes, but when the Bulls walked off the diamonds they were usually the ones who were laughing in the Westland Youth Athletic Association baseball league. The Bulls captured their division title with a 12-2 record, went on to win the playoffs by defeating the Colts 5-4, then edged the Reds 3-2 to rule

Westland wins Sandy Koufax state title; eyes World Series

Westland's Sandy Koufax All-Stars are heading for the World Series in Knoxville, Tenn. this weekend after winning eight straight games for the state championship.

Manager Dick Ashton's group of 14-year-olds was unbeatable in two tournaments that led to the World Series which gets underway this Thursday morning in Bill Meyers Memorial Stadium.

Westland won the title by sweeping two games Saturday in Battle Creek. They beat Livonia Don Massey Cadillac, 7-5, for the title after edging a spunky Plymouth Canton squad, 7-6.

Lloyd Phipps, Westland's third-sacker, delivered the knockout blow in the championship tilt when he hammered a two-run homer in the bottom of the sixth inning to snap a 5-5 deadlock. Pat Livesay, the winning pitcher, and Gene O'Dowd combined to allow just one hit by Livonia.

A 5-run second inning got Westland off and running. Right fielder Ron Guiliani and shortstop Jeff Valdez singled around a walk to first baseman Tim Filary to load the sacks. Then pitcher O'Dowd and left fielder Matt Korte each delivered two-RBI singles to give the hometowners a 5-0 lead. Phipps also had a single and Korte, Guiliani and Filary each had 2-for-4 and scored a run in the game.

In the semi-final game against Plymouth Canton, Westland again scored five runs in the second inning to jump out to a 5-0 lead. Instrumental in the rally was a 2-RBI single by second sacker Darrell Gagnon, a double by Filary and singles by center fielder John Hart, Valdez and catcher Rich Popp.

Plymouth Canton battled back, slicing Westland's lead to a slim 5-4 count by scoring four runs in the bottom of the third. Highlight of the outburst was center fielder Dave Slavin's sharp 3-RBI double into the right field corner. Rain halted the contest for 90 minutes, before Canton's left fielder, Tom Michno, singled, stole second and later scored on two errors to tie the score at 5-all.

Westland broke it open in the top of the sixth when Valdez singled sharply to center and Korte and Gagnon rapped solid back-to-back doubles off the left center field fence. Lloyd Phipps, who won four games in the state title drive, was the winning pitcher.

Canton scored in the sixth when Michno singled, Cheeseman singled and Haarala doubled to score one run. However, Cheeseman, the tying run, was cut down at the plate on a perfect relay throw from centerfielder John Hart to third baseman Andy Armbruster to catcher Rich Popp.

In the eight games, Phipps won four, Livesay earned three wins on the mound and O'Dowd won one game. Manager Ashton praised pitcher Steve Hatcher for hurling five outstanding innings against Battle Creek Village Inn as Westland won, 8-4.

In other tourney games, Westland beat Centerline, 16-7, and Windsor Mic-Mac twice, 14-13 and 9-3 to advance to Battle Creek. At Battle Creek, they beat Lansing Melville, 7-5 as Filary hit two home runs; Roseville, 8-2; Battle Creek, 8-4; besides the exciting wrap-up against Plymouth Canton, 7-6, and Livonia, 7-5.

Pittman's capture crown

Wayne made it a 9-7 ballgame, but Pittman held a last inning Johnny's attempt to overcome the difference as he gave up one run.

Pittman collected two hits — both singles — and scored two times, while brother Randy chipped in with three singles and an RBI. Gray Mason latched on to a single, double and triple while Terry Patterson had a couple of singles for the winners.

Don Yancik was charged with the loss. He gave up 19 hits. Rich Sharp led the hitting assault on Pittman as he blasted a homer and singled. Teammate Phil Raney also belted a triple and singled while John Shivers had a pair of singles. John Bates was the only other Johnny's player with more than one hit. He collected a single and double.

Pittman's made it to the finals via victories over Town & Country, Model Truck and Johnny's, while Johnny's got past the Warriors in the loser's bracket to challenge the Wayne entry for the championship.

BY LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

For the past week there's been rather a void in our household — the place suddenly seems overly large for just the two and a half of us (Carol being the fraction we see only parttime.)

The bathtub has lost its somewhat unusual accouterments (a plastic baby tub atilt for airing and its companion sponge rubber liner — the pail of Curities soaking in baking soda water has disappeared — and the shelves which held tiny sunsuits and jumpsuits, mini sleepwear and booties have given way once again to man-sized accessories.

We found ourselves with ears attuned for that "certain sound" — a baby awakening —. We miss velvet-soft chubby little cheeks nuzzling into our necks, the surprising strength of teeny fingers gripping ours, the hilarious picture of suddenly-crossed eyes, those special little cooing sounds which only a 2-month-old can manufacture and the cuddly softness of that wee bairn nestled in our arms.

Our grandson Matthew — his week's vacation in Michigan over — is back in his own little nursery near the Windy City. A few things were left behind as reminders of our miniature houseguest but the most nostalgic of all is a special scent — that sweet, sweet smell which only comes from having had a new-born baby in one's home.

And, rather than have Number One Daughter think she's been completely overshadowed, I have to admit that I miss our fast and furious "Pounce" games (that's cards, folks), our mind-boggling "Spill 'n Spell" sessions, our heart-to-hearts, her help at mealtimes and just the fun of having her back home again.

And, yeah, we sorta miss you, too, Pete!

If I seem to be saturating you lately with talks of "on the way to work the other day" items, it's cuz I want to share the thrill of my weekly discoveries with hopes that you can form something of a visual picture in your mind as I weave a scenic tapestry or two.

Along one of the half-dozen trails that lead me to Belleville are miles (literal aisles) of tiger lilies, both sides of the road banked with bright orange masses of one of Michigan's beautiful weed-flowers. On another are rows of wild chicory standing guard along the shoulders in their special lavender blue uniforms (one time I'm glad the county tractors haven't mowed the roadways.) Queen Anne's lace, of course, is everywhere and lends a delicate airy touch to an otherwise sturdy crop of overgrowth.

Many, many mailboxes, I've noticed, have been beautified with plantings of colorful petunias at their bases while others are set in cut-down wooden barrels which overflow with geraniums, alyssum and trailing vines. Some even have railroad ties for backs and, too, are lovely with profusions of summer blooms.

It's all quite beautiful and breath-taking and I think the change from week to week keeps me more aware of nature (and awake at the wheel.) Never having had more than a 15-minute drive to work I now have time to absorb and appreciate the small wonders of the country-side.

The other day as I surrendered to a man-sized sneeze smack in the midst of applying mascara I stopped and thought "what poor timing!" A stupid time to sneeze since I not only ended up with polka-dotted cheeks but had to do a complete re-run.

Another instance when I can always count on a good "kerchoo" is after I've stuffed my mouth with a favorite saltine or two. Needless to say that no matter how I try to muffle the expulsion I always end up showering half the room with cracker crumbs.

And why is it (for me, at least) that whenever I find myself mid-way in my pantihose tug-of-war, the phone rings! Yep, there I am — straddled between two lengths of delicate nylon — (just above the knees being the perfect distance) — when the phone rings. Ever tried to catch the darn thing while running the knee-knocker dash? A challenge!

"WHATEVER HAPPENED TO GOOD OLD APPLE PIE?" An obvious apple pie buff asked me at a recent lawn party as we sat down with some of the most luscious-looking desserts ever.

I was completely happy with the heavenly layered creations formed of nuts, whipped cream, puddings and etceteras but my dessert companion was obviously not too overjoyed by all the "goop" (and what a misnomer!)

It did give me food for thought (rather than for digestion) and do you suppose, gals, that we've been overdoing it with all the new and exciting recipes and forgetting the old favorite which, along with hot dogs, baseball, and you-know-what supposedly form the foundation of the American home? Hm-m-m?

I ADORE the platters and pans which bear those 12-tiered batches of calories but I guess (as one of the dessert-contributing crowd at potlucks) I should take into consideration other folks' palates as well. I've decided that NEXT time I have the opportunity to share in a co-op dinner it will be something basic and simple — a 2-crust pie of some sort — and I just hope, C.T., that you're there to watch me cut that apple-blueberry-rhubarb-strawberry-peach pie into big fattening wedges!

I have (what I consider) a real money-saver for you this week — that is, if you're big on ranch-style dressing. "he" ranch-style. We love it at our house and at one time also loved the small tag of 29 cents at which it made its debut. BUT — with the cost having soared to 55 cents and higher (for a teensy bit of herbs and spices) this kitchen detective took to a little sleuthing.

Read the gourmet glossies, the kitchen pages of the dailies and the recipes in the home magazines avidly and finally found one gal's answer to the "secret" of ranch dressing mix. Gave it a try and though it came close, it still didn't quite measure up. So — took it from there and added my own variations and here's what I've settled for.

Try it — you'll get TWO containers of dressing from the one mixture. Just add two tablespoons of the spice-herb blend to one cup mayonnaise (only mayonnaise will do, no substitutes) and one cup buttermilk. And if it's not quite to your satisfaction, improvise until your own taste buds are happy.

This COULD be an initial expense to those of you who have a sparse pantry but if it's well-endowed, you're gonna save a few coins.

LEE'S TAKE-OFF ON RANCH DRESSING MIX

- 1 scant tablespoon salt
- 2 teaspoons monosodium glutamate
- 2 teaspoons dried parsley flakes
- 1/2 teaspoon dill weed
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/2 teaspoon onion powder
- 1 teaspoon white pepper.

Place all ingredients in a jar or plastic container that has a tight-fitting lid. Shake well and store covered in cupboard.

One of the many new conveniences I inherited when we moved to our new home is a fully carpeted kitchen (a rather large one). Well, it's the one luxury this kitchen lackey could ex out cuz she's one big slob when it comes to preparing vittles (I HATE the real spelling of that word) for her crew.

I also was blessed with a central vacuum system (which I LOVE) but not for sweeping up the daily droppings. And with the demise of my electric broom I've had to tackle that old handtool — a long dowl-shaped piece of wood with a bunch of straw attached to one end — but it just doesn't quite work.

What I'm leading up to in such a round-about fashion is — I find myself looking at lots of little dark spots here and there — those mysteriously soiled patches which everyday living helps create. Figured I'd just wait until golf season was over and the gloomy days had settled in and I'd give the whole works a good bath.

BUT — a couple particularly ugly and noticeable blotches really stood out and when a kind soul asked me, "What happened THERE?", I'd no sooner shut the door on her when I reached for an old piece of terry towel and my faithful Fantastik bottle. Gave both eyesores a good spray job and let 'em set for about five minutes; then took the dry towel and really rubbed and VOILA! — no more topics for a lull in conversation.

(And, no, I get no percentage from the Texize Chemical Co. for plugging its product — I just get a lot of mileage from the stuff.)

THE BOTTOM LINE: Love your enemies. Without them you'd probably have nobody to blame but yourself.

UHT Memorial Funeral Home

HAROLD REDISKE JR. IS THERE REALLY A PURPOSE FOR A FUNERAL?

Many social and personal customs undergo changes and are criticized as obsolete and void of purpose. Funeral customs and directors have not escaped these critics.

However, these very criticisms have given strength to the tradition of funeral service, because it has caused the public to think seriously about the purpose of the funeral.

The funeral provides, of course, for the proper disposition of the body. It also provides a service of love and caring for the living those who place value in life and pay respect to the dignity of man.

The funeral is generally a basic religious rite just as the baptism and the marriage ceremony. It provides a time for friends, neighbors and associates to express group support and compassion for the bereaved.

The funeral director is professionally trained to provide a compassionate and understanding service during the difficult emotional experience of death.

We are at your service, whenever needed.

Lawn and garden guide for August

Summer may be on the downhill side, but the lawn and garden chores keep coming. Michigan State University Extension specialists suggest the following tasks are timely:

- Keep pinching the faded flowers and seed heads from flowering annuals. Some will stop blooming if you don't do this. Others will get long and straggly.
- Take cuttings from geraniums, coleus, begonia, fuchsia and impatiens to grow indoors this winter. All cuttings will not form roots, so be sure to take more than you think you need.
- Prepare beds for spring-flowering bulbs. Order bulbs now for planting in late fall.
- Dahlias will produce bigger flowers if you remove some of the lateral buds and thin some of the side shoots. Stake and tie tall plants as needed.

- Cut back perennials when the foliage starts to die.
- Check trees and shrubs planted in the past couple of years to make sure they're not being girdled by guy wires. Wire or nylon rope around the base of the trunk or plastic around the root ball should have been removed at planting time.
- Avoid fertilizing shrubs and trees now. This would stimulate new growth that would be susceptible to winter injury.
- Maples with mottled, curled, and glossy and sticky leaves are infested with aphids. If aphid predators like ladybugs are scarce, you can spray with malathion or Sevin. This is not recommended, however. The aphids can't do any serious damage this late in the season. And spraying would also wipe out predator and beneficial insects.

- Bagworms feeding on ornamentals should be hand picked and destroyed. Spraying is not effective now.
- Heavy infestations of lacebugs on sycamore, honeylocust and other ornamentals can be sprayed with malathion or Sevin. Avoid using Sevin near the colonies — it is extremely toxic to honeybees. Spray ornamentals late in the day, when bees are less likely to be active.

- Yellow leaves with green veins are a sign of iron deficiency in azaleas and oak trees. Correct this condition with iron chelates applied as a soil drench or with iron implants.
- Prepare and seed bare spots in your lawn. During dry weather, water daily — more than once, if necessary — until the new grass is well established.
- Establish a new lawn or renovate an old one between Aug. 15 and Sept. 15. MSU research has shown this to be the best time for lawn establishment in Michigan.
- Fertilize established lawns around Labor Day with a complete fertilizer.
- To control white grubs and sod webworms that are damaging lawns, apply a granular or spray formulation of diazinon, following label directions.

- To whiten the heads of cauliflower, wrap them in the larger leaves of the plants when heads are two to three inches across. Heads are ready for harvest when they reach six inches in diameter. Self-blanching and green- or purple-headed varieties do not require this treatment.
- If wilt diseases zapped your tomatoes this year, make a note to buy resistant varieties and to plant tomatoes in a new spot next year. The organisms that cause these diseases remain the soil from year to year.

- Tomatoes with early and late blight or leafspot diseases can be sprayed with maneb or tomato sprays containing copper.
- Hand pick tomato hornworms off plants and destroy them. Or spray with Bacillus thuringiensis, a bacterial disease that affects only caterpillars.

- To make celery stalks grow paler, cover the plants for 12 to 15 days to keep the light off of them.
- Dig potatoes after the tops die.

August garden chores

— Harvest onions for storage after the tops turn brown and fall over. Onions for fresh use can be harvested anytime.

— For top quality, harvest vegetables as they are ready. Cucumbers, summer squash and similar plants will keep producing new fruits until frost as long as you keep picking them.

— Make a map of your garden so you can move various crops to different locations next year. Closely related plants — like squash, cucumbers and melons, or potatoes, tomatoes, eggplant and peppers — are susceptible to the same diseases and should not follow one another in the same spots.

— Check sweet corn for signs of invasion by the corn earworm or European corn borer. Spray with Sevin if necessary.

— Thin fall vegetables planted in July.

Exhibit shows art trend

Detroit Institute of Arts Curator Jay Belloli has traveled the United States and selected the work of six sculptors to illustrate what he believes is a new direction in contemporary art.

The younger artists, a generation removed from Abstract Expressionists and Minimalists, reveal a new concern for recognizable image. In a variety of materials and forms, including tape and video, they explore fresh approaches to imagery and real objects.

The artists are Terry Allen of California, Michael Luchs and Michele Oka Doner of Michigan, Scott Burton and Dennis Oppenheim of New York and Jim Roche of Florida.

Exhibition of their work, "Image and Object in Contemporary Sculpture," is open at The Detroit Institute of Arts through Sept. 12. Organized by Belloli, the display includes works especially commissioned for Detroit showing.

The pieces, 29 in all, range from single, small objects to large environments, some embracing video, sound, narration, painted surfaces and sculptural forms. Installation will be throughout two floors of the museum's Ford (South) Wing.

Belloli noted: "For the first time, a great variety of styles and artistic attitudes have co-existed throughout the (current) decade without any one of them appearing to have predominant avant garde status."

The number of viable artistic modes, Belloli said, have combined with the de-emphasis of New York as America's artistic capitol and thus contributed to the resurgence of regional activity in the 1970s.

Terry Allen, a native of West Texas, will be represented by two environmental pieces, including sculpture, painting, sound and writing, from the "Ring," his extensive series based on the story of a disintegrating marriage of two writers and expressed with images from professional wrestling.

Scott Burton creates sculptural objects that also are pieces of furniture — chairs and tables that are meant to be used — and completely transforms the traditional relationship between "high" art and functional design.

Michele Oka Doner concentrates on natural forms — bones, seeds, roots and other objects — that, reinterpreted in clay and bronze, become ritual objects expressing the continuity of the cycle of life.

Michael Luchs devises sculptures of assembled scrap wood, wire, metal and other cast-off materials that are powerfully emotional images of rabbits, suffering and trapped.

Dennis Oppenheim, widely recognized for his earthworks, conceptual and body art and more recent interior environments, contributes two sculptures, both dealing with themes of change and transformation and of human destruction. His work also explores the role of art and the artist in our society.

Jim Roche is fascinated by religious and popular myths, or myths he creates himself. He deals with Christian, vampire, Texan and other symbols by assembling contemporary, often funky, kitsch materials into sculptures that are very funny and serious at the same time. He has constructed several pieces, including the imaginary beast, the "Texadilian," for the show.

Expand your skills

The Michigan State Fair is more than a place where experts demonstrate, or exhibit, their wares.

The fair also has make it and take it workshops, where those interested in a craft can improve their skills, or learn new ones.

The classes will be offered daily throughout the fair's run — Aug. 24 through Sept. 3 (Labor Day). They cover crafts like bobbin lace, quilting and cake decorating.

Applications are being taken on a first come-first served basis because the size of each group is limited. A small fee will be charged to cover instruction and materials. Participants can take their projects home, too. The complete schedule of workshops is:

— Wood splint basket, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Aug. 27;

— Broom corn basket, 2 to 5 p.m. Aug. 27;

— Quilting, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 6 to 9 p.m. Aug. 28;

— Bobbin lace, 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Aug. 30;

— Tube painting, 2:30 to 4 p.m. Sept. 1;

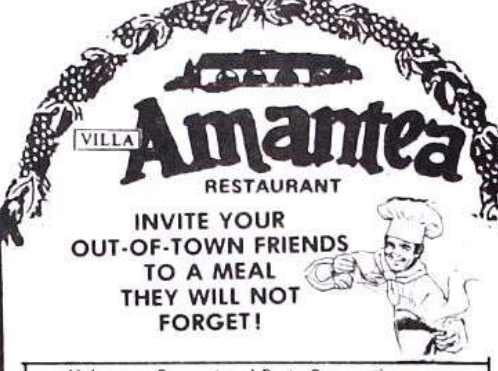

— Porcelain doll making, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sept. 1;

— Making chocolate candy, 1 to 3 p.m. Sept. 2;

— Cake decorating, 3 to 5 p.m. Sept. 2; and — Machine knitting, at 10 a.m., 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. Aug. 24 through Sept. 3.

For further information on the make it and take it workshops, contact the Community Arts Department, Michigan State Fairgrounds, Detroit 48101, or call 368-1000.

Good news for all savers.

Standard Federal Savings offers a wide choice of savings plans, plus bonus gifts free or at big savings.

NEW 4-YEAR MONEY MARKET SAVINGS CERTIFICATE* MINIMUM BALANCE $100.00 INTEREST CONTINUOUSLY COMPOUNDED

This account pays interest at a rate based on the average 4-year yield for United States Treasury Securities as determined by the United States Department of the Treasury. The interest rate on 4-Year Money Market Certificates is determined monthly by the Treasury Department. The rate in effect on the day the certificate is opened will remain in effect for the full 4-year term. Interest is continuously compounded on the most favorable basis possible—giving you the highest rate available on these certificates— $\frac{1}{4}\%$ higher than banks can pay. In July, the rate is 7.85% per annum, and with continuous compounding the effective annual yield is 8.284%.

NEW! A HIGHER INTEREST RATE ON REGULAR PASSBOOK SAVINGS ACCOUNTS.

The interest rate on the regular passbook savings account has been increased to $5\frac{1}{2}\%$, paid and compounded quarterly. No minimum deposits are required. Interest is paid from the day of deposit to the day of withdrawal. With quarterly compounding, the effective annual yield on this account is 5.614%. No bank can pay this high rate on regular passbook savings.

26-WEEK MONEY MARKET CERTIFICATES* MINIMUM BALANCE $10,000.00

The interest rate of this certificate is determined by the average auction rate (on a discount basis) for 26-week Treasury Bills. Federal regulations prohibit all financial institutions from compounding interest during the term of a 26-Week Money Market Certificate. If retained in the account, interest is compounded at the time of renewal. The interest rate on 26-Week Money Market Certificates is determined weekly. The rate in effect on the day the certificate is opened is the rate in effect for the full 26-week term. Call 643-9583 to obtain the current rate.

$100,000.00 SAVINGS CERTIFICATE*

This certificate has terms ranging from 30 days to 5 years with interest rates quoted by Standard Federal Savings on a daily basis. The rate established at the time an account is opened is the rate in effect for the full term of the certificate. Interest may be added to this account and compounded quarterly, or you may elect to receive your interest by check. Call 643-9562 for the current rates.

ATCHINSON FORD

SALES INC.

Biggest Clearance Sale In History.

Ford Thunderbird

Special incentives from Ford to its dealers make lower prices possible.

Now through August 20, Ford Dealers will be getting special Ford incentives on Thunderbirds, LTD's and Mustang Pace car replicas plus V-8 pickups, vans, Broncos, Rancheros and Club Wagons. This massive program is designed to help dealers lower selling prices and move out big stocks in preparation for the 1980 Ford car and truck introductions. It's truly a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for smart buyers.

EPA mileage estimates show Fords go the distance.

Driving a long-range Ford can make a big difference today. Thunderbird, for example, can go from 294 to 420 miles per tankful, based on its 21-gallon tank and EPA estimated 14 MPG for city driving and 20 MPG for highway. A driver's mileage will vary depending on speed, distance and weather, and highway mileage and range will probably be lower than estimates. However, a 27.5-gallon tank is standard on Town Landau and Heritage models, optional on others. It greatly extends Thunderbird's range.

Buyers can save hundreds of dollars now.

The Ford incentive program makes possible bigger discounts than at any other time this year. People who have hesitated to buy because of the economy, or have been holding out for greater savings should act now. It's doubtful if prices will ever be this low again.

Giant selection of new Ford cars and trucks.

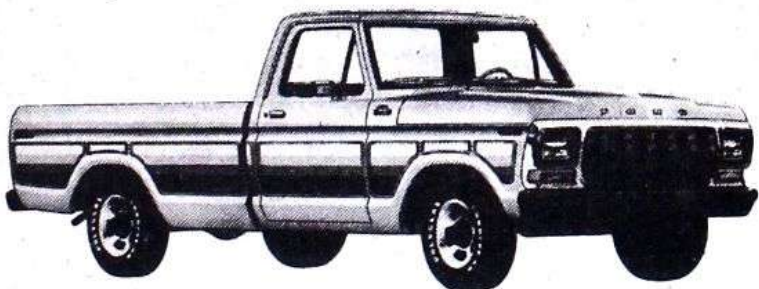

Ford District office reports that stocks in dealer hands are among the largest ever. Even though customers can no longer order vehicles built to their specifications, a truly fabulous choice is available. Dealers have a great variety of body styles, colors and option levels to offer.

Buyers can walk right in, drive right out.

There's not a lot of haggling over price these days. A typical buyer can close the deal on the Ford car or truck he wants in a matter of minutes. Most dealers have made special arrangements for rapid financing approvals, too. They say "nobody walks out" and many Fords are already "prepped" for immediate delivery. This is the biggest clearance sale local Ford Dealers have ever held. It has the backing of Ford in the form of incentives to lower prices. And it's in full swing with savings just waiting to be snapped up.

TOYOTA ANN ARBOR'S AUGUST ANNIVERSARY

Why Wait?

We've got high-mileage, low-price cars Right Now.

Every dealer seems to be out of economy cars these days. Except us. We planned ahead for our August Anniversary Sale, to make sure you get the car you want, now.

If low prices and high mileage are what you're looking for, we've got the cars that give it to you.

In fact, we've ordered 200 cars to sell this month and we intend to sell them all.

That includes Corollas; Celicas; Coronas; Cressidas; trucks; plenty of Land Cruisers, too.

Why wait up to six weeks—or longer—for a car that doesn't deliver what Toyota delivers? When you got it, you got it. And we've got it now.

Remember: Compare this estimate to the EPA Estimated MPG of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on how fast you drive, weather conditions and trip length. Actual highway mileage will probably be less than the EPA Highway Estimate.

WE BUY CLEAN LOW MILEAGE CARS

LEO CALHOUN 453-1327 41001 PLYMOUTH RD. "Where Customers Bring Their Friends"

TOYOTA ANN ARBOR'S AUGUST ANNIVERSARY

Why Wait?

We've got high-mileage, low-price cars Right Now.

Every dealer seems to be out of economy cars these days. Except us. We planned ahead for our August Anniversary Sale, to make sure you get the car you want, now.

If low prices and high mileage are what you're looking for, we've got the cars that give it to you.

In fact, we've ordered 200 cars to sell this month and we intend to sell them all.

That includes Corollas; Celicas; Coronas; Cressidas; trucks; plenty of Land Cruisers, too.

Why wait up to six weeks—or longer—for a car that doesn't deliver what Toyota delivers? When you got it, you got it. And we've got it now.

Remember: Compare this estimate to the EPA Estimated MPG of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on how fast you drive, weather conditions and trip length. Actual highway mileage will probably be less than the EPA Highway Estimate.

NEW VOTERS
There are about 31,000,000
Americans potentially qualified to vote for the first time in this fall's election.
some by virtue of having moved, others by the Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1970, plus those 21 to 24 year olds who have become eligible since the last presidential election. People are almost unanimous in their approval of Associated Newspapers Classified Ads.
That's because they get results they like... cash for good things they no longer need. So when you have something you'd like to sell,
(look around now), dial 729-

33rd ANNUAL WAYNE COUNTY YOUTH FAIR

AUGUST 13 thru 18, 1979
FAIRGROUNDS-QUIRK ROAD
BELLEVILLE, MICHIGAN

Just off I-94 Expressway
North of Belleville, Mich.
Post Office Box 308
Belleville, Mich. 48111
Telephone - OX7-7002

It's all at the fair

It's buzzing like a beehive with activities at the 4-H Fairgrounds in Van Buren Township as exhibitors and organizers ready for the Sunday opening of the 33rd annual Wayne County 4-H Fair.

And rest assured there will be something for everyone when it gets underway Sunday with the parade opening. There'll be tractor pulling, judging of animals, vegetables and flowers, new and antique tractor pulls, frog jumping, rooster calling pet show and an auction of the champion livestock.

This year's fair will run from Monday, Aug. 13, through Saturday, Aug. 18. Kicking off the fair will be a Hearty Healthy Run, sponsored by the Wayne County 4-H Awareness Team, starting at 12:30 p.m. Runners will travel a 3.5 mile course from Belleville High School on West Columbia in Belleville to the 4-H Fairgrounds on Quirk Road at I-94 in Van Buren Township.

Immediately following will be the fair's officially opening, the annual 4-H Fair parade, at 2 p.m.

Monday is when activities will swing into high gear, with the long tedious judging process getting underway. Highlights of the day will include a square dancing demonstration at 7:30 p.m. by the Rustic Village Squares, Frank and Nora Adkins, callers.

Tuesday senior citizens will be admitted free on charge from 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. Fair-goers will see dairy, beef, poultry and water fowl judging, as well as have a chance to cheer on young appetites in a watermelon eating contest.

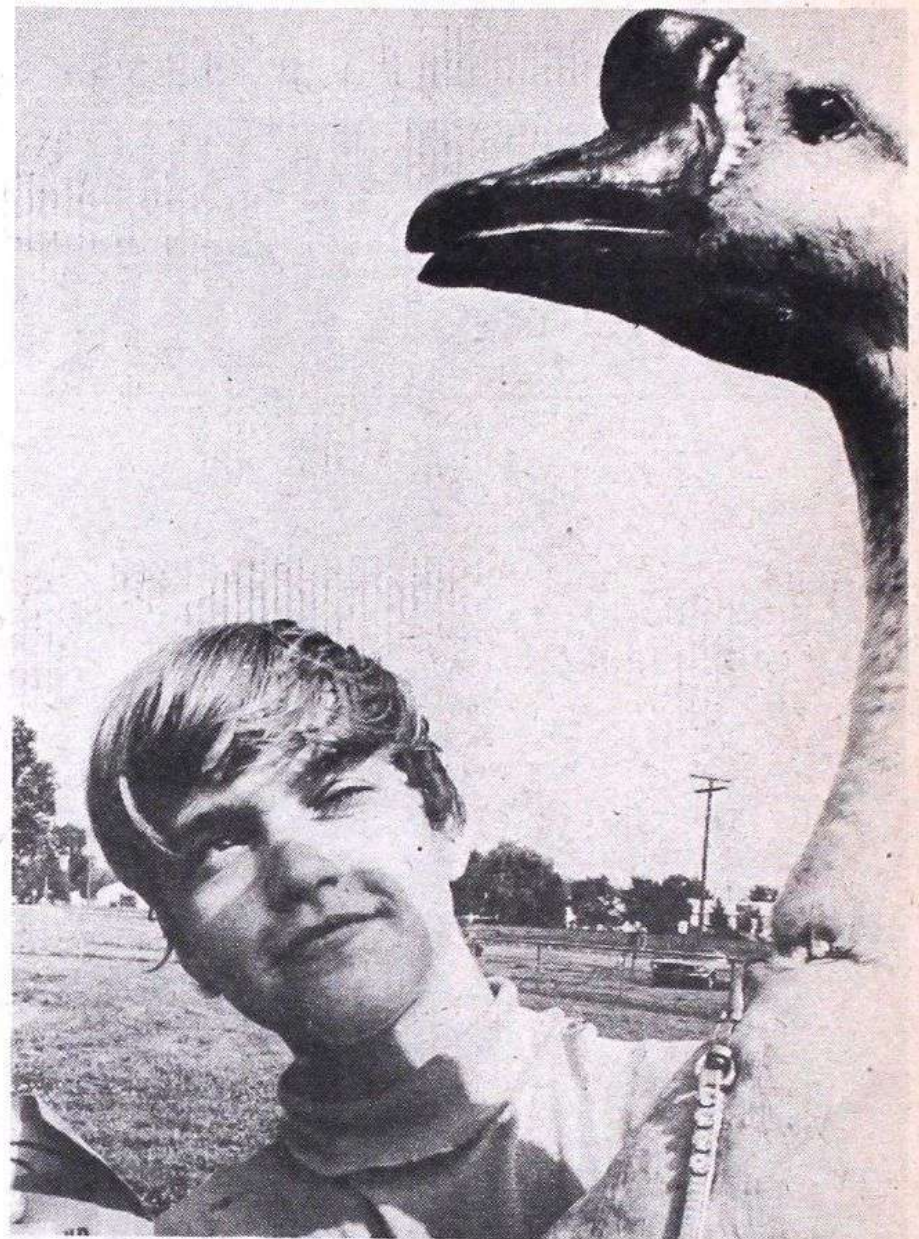

The judging will continue on Wednesday, with a stock farm tractor pull at 7:30 p.m. closing out the day. Horses and sheep will be the center of attractions Thursday in the judging, while it's Anything Goes at 7 p.m. that night.

Those with favorite "cock-a-doodlers" will be arriving on Friday with their roosters for the 7 a.m. Saturday rooster crowing contest. Other highlights of Friday will be the sweepstakes judging, as well as a pony pulling contest.

Tractor pulling a frog jumping contest, style revue and antique tractor pull will be just a few of the events going on throughout the last full day of the fair.

Sunday exhibitors will be packing to leave, but not before a 7 p.m. demolition derby.

So if you're looking for some close to home fun this coming week, head for the 4-H Fairgrounds for the time of your life.
